BAR CRITIC AT STATE PRISON

Massachusetts legislators could be bribed into voting for petty prison reforms by suits of prison made clothes, Mrs. Francis Gray, secretary of the Massachusetts Prison Association, told the Social Service Club of the Church of the Advent.

Every person connected with Gov. Cox's prison, conditions in which she terms "outrageous," from Governor Cox down is opposed to improvements, Mrs. Gray asserted. She urged that the prison system be removed from the "control of the politicians," and said that her "agitation" had resulted in her being barred from the prison.

Mr. Morrison is survived by his wife.

FIRE SENDS GUESTS FROM NEWTON HOTEL

A neglected electric flatiron in an unoccupied room caused a blaze that drove guests from the top floor of the Vernon Court Hotel on Centre street, Newton, today.

When discovered the flames had eaten through the ceiling of the room and burst through the roof.

Guests on the top floor rushed to the rooms below and to the lobby while the firemen held the fire to the top floor.

Investigation disclosed that Miss Katherine Finnimmons, a guest, who went away on a visit Sunday night, left the electric iron attached to the fixture. It is believed the watchman, during his rounds, turned on the current by accident. Damage was set at approximately $15,000. Water damage through the lower floors was high.

Manufacturers Agree to Recognize New Organization and Drop Court Action

Ten thousand striking Lynn shoe operatives, employed by more than fifty factories, returned to their benches this morning.

The strike was declared off early today, after an all-night conference between the Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' Association, the executive committee of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, and Judge Ralph W. Reeve of the District Court in Lynn, who acted as an adjuster.

Representatives of the Manufacturers' Association agreed to recognize the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America, a newly formed organization, to drop all court proceedings instituted against the strikers and to make provision for the settlement of differences now existing.

A week ago the heel workers, edge makers and Goodyear operatives demanded a 30 per cent. wage increase. This demand was rejected immediately by the manufacturers.

Vaccinate Dogs to Prevent Attacks of Rabies

Newark, N. J., April 24.—The expression "a dog's life," meaning the stopping of the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, took on an added anguish when the order went forth that all dogs must be vaccinated.

Already the canines of this vicinity must wear a muzzle, and run on a leash, and now the vaccination is heaped upon the species because one dog bit ten persons and later showed signs of rabies.

By BERT FORD.

Late disclosures point to this broker the dealings of whose firm, entailing loss to hundreds of investors, will figure at the trial of the indicted officials set for the week of May 7.

It was in connection with this deal that indictments were returned against Charles L. Burrill, president of the concern, former State treasurer and present member of the Governor's Council who unable to appear in court owing to illness.

G. C. Gallup.

Seven officials of Boston-Montana Corporation and subsidiaries arraigned are William J. Bureau, a Wico president; Samuel Usher, 2nd., of Cambridge; Judge George Gallup, formerly of the Circuit Court of Michigan; Harry G. Porch of Reading; H. Carleton Slack, Nathaniel E. Flanders and Charles F. Cowdrey of Fitchburg.

Those not yet arraigned are Hamilton B. Wills, Francis Sullivan, Boston; Robert M. Currier of Westwood, John H. Burnham, Boston; Charles E. Gallup, Michigan, and William R. Allen, of Butte, president of Boston-Montana Corporation and former lieutenant-governor of Montana.

Doubt was expressed today that President Allen would come here to answer to the indictment or that he could be extradited. The accused were represented by a flock of lawyers. Attorneys John R. McVey and Judd Dewey, representing the American Discount Corporation officials and others, demanded a speedy trial. Attorney Dewey said that as one of his clients, Mr. Burrill held an important public office, he was anxious for swift disposition.

ON TRIAL LIST MAY 7.

Judge O'Connell said other cases on the crowded docket had priority. District Attorney O'Brien recommended that the case be put on the trial list beginning May 7, which was done.

In the corridor after adjournment District Attorney O'Brien remarked that his office had only "just begun to scratch the Boston-Montana scandal."

ELEVEN ARRAIGNED.

Eleven of the first eighteen indicted were arraigned before Judge O'Connell in Superior Court, pleaded not guilty and were each allowed to go on his personal recognizance under $1,000 bonds. William Robert Montgomery, credit manager of the American Discount Corporation, No. 40 Court street, was directed to appear in court today and furnish special bail of $10,000.

The other three officials of the American Discount Corporation arraigned were William Lee George, of Brooklin.

Aristides Melendes of Revere and Seth T. Gano of Belmont. Charles L. Burrill, president of the Boston-Montana Corporation and former Lieutenant-governor of Montana.

The legal fight for Sacco, found guilty with Bartolomio Vanzetti of murder in South Braintree, continues. By direction of Judge Thayer, counsel for Sacco will appear before him next Monday in Dedham court to present briefs and arguments looking to a new trial for Sacco.

TECH PLANS TO END 'KICKS' ON FIELD DAY

Plans to prevent further riots by Technology students and subsequent clashes with the Boston police following the annual "field day" celebration and attendance at a local theatre have been formulated by a committee of students comprising K. C. Kingsley '23 and T. M. Taylor '23.

In place of the usual snake dance after the show the committee proposes a regularly organized parade with an appointed route, a chief marshal and all that goes to make up a procession. By this means they hope to keep the celebrators in check.

As a substitute for the "riot" it is proposed to light an enormous bonfire at Tech field. Fist fights, impromptu rushes and other activities of the rival groups will be strictly barred. Instead there will be speeches, singing and other entertainment.

Last November 2,000 Tech students became so bolsterous in the vicinity of Exeter street that a riot call was sent in for police reinforcements and a score of students were arrested.

Philip Kaplan, of No. 174 Shepard street, the suspected bootlegger, gave the officers a "hard look," it is said, and then rendered Kane hors de combat with a sudden smash of his right fist. Darsney mixed in, only to be encountered by Kaplan's better nine-tenths.

Kaplan was later arrested.

QUIT OLD UNION.

Previously the three organizations had affiliated with the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America. Other unions deserted the United Shoe Workers of America, heretofore the controlling organization.

With the desertion yesterday of Lasters' Local No. 1 from the ranks of the United Shoe Workers, the Amalgamated Shoe Workers gained numerical superiority, and agreed to confer with the manufacturers.

Twelve distinct clauses are contained in the agreement, which is signed for the manufacturers by Samuel L. Fisher, president of the Manufacturers' Association, Harry M. Read, of the firm of Gregory & Read, and William H. Hennessey, and for the operatives by William B. Fogarty, president of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers, and eight other representatives of the operatives.

TERMS OF AGREEMENT.

The agreement follows:

1—The manufacturers agree to recognize the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America.

2—The employes are to return to work on April 24.

3—All workers are to be reinstated without any discrimination.

4—Prices and conditions in the department of the cutting, stitching and packing room, that have been changed since February 5, 1923, and those established by the Mayor's board, shall be taken up if requested.

5—All on account prices to be adjusted.

6—Price increase request of heel workers, edge makers and Goodyear operatives is hereby waived.

TO ARBITRATE DISPUTES.

7—The firms agree to recognize all officers of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America.

8. It is agreed that stewards shall be recognized in factory departments when requested by local executive boards.

9. Members of the Amalgamated Union employed in the departments covered by the present working agreement agree to perform the said agreement.

10. All hour work and conditions in the stitching department to be taken up at once for the board of adjustment.

GOULD BRIDES MAY COST HIM $5,000,000

New York, April 24.—Marrying without the consent of his brothers and sisters may cost Frank J. Gould about $5,000,000.

This possibility became known today when George J. Gould filed a counter suit in the action previously entered against him for an accounting of the $50,000,000 estate left by Jay Gould.

He refers to the "matrimonial clause" of the second codicil of Jay Gould's will which specifies: "If any of my children shall marry without my consent during my lifetime or thereafter without the consent of the majority of the executors and trustees under this will, the share of such child shall be reduced one half."

George claims Frank married Edith Kelley in 1910 and Florence La Case last February without obtaining the consent of himself or Edwin Gould, Howard Gould or Helen Gould Shepard.

"A Fly's Ear." Munsey

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW, confidential man of three generations of Vanderbilts, once president of the New York Central Railroad and United States Senator, yesterday celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday. President Harding and his wife sent congratulations; so did the King of England and his son.

Chauncey Depew explains his long life and good health, but doesn't give the real explanation, which is CHEERFULNESS.

We kill ourselves with foolish eating and many foolish things. But above all, we poison ourselves with worry and ill temper. Depew has let the others worry, so his eighty-ninth birthday finds him well.

A GREAT THING is a trade. Every wise man will teach his son and daughter some way to earn a living. That makes a child ready for whatever may happen.

Especially lucky are those that have their trade and workshop inside the brain. Paderewski, whose finger tips obey his mind, has earned $460,000 since November, an average of $7,000 for each of the sixty-six times he played in public.

PROFESSOR PERRY of Harvard suggests that, instead of wasting energy censoring books, it would be a good idea to get the people to read a few books, which a majority don't do now.

The Atlantic Monthly calls your attention to the fact that for one dollar spent on books in the United States we spend twenty-seven dollars for chewing gum and twenty-seven dollars for perfume.

As for "immoral books," they are easily identified. Their authors and sellers should be jailed. Such books, however, do not seek the readers. When a woman told Dr. Johnson there were many improper words in his dictionary, his reply was, "Madam, I see that you have been looking for them."

THE WORLD'S STRUGGLE is for oil. It is needed for ships, flying machines. It represents industry, power and safety. Americans, through the Chester grant, have secured great oil possibilities from the Turkish government. France and England object. There will be a row about it at Lausanne.

What chance does President Harding think this country would have to get oil from Mesopotamia if we were pushed into the world court, and that court were allowed to decide the question for us?

In the language of Frank A. Munsey, we wouldn't get enough oil to grease a fly's ear.

THE WORLD IS HORRIFIED to read that in Moscow a young woman with thick bobbed hair, barely twenty years old, presided as judge and in a calm voice sentenced to death seven men for robbery with violence.

Citizeness Anna Gluzman is the name of the Russian Portia. Of eight men, all young, Anna sentenced seven to death. One she let off with ten years in jail, because he was only eighteen.

OUR HORROR at the sight of a bobbed-hair young lady, sentencing men to death, is merely habit. When an old gentleman with no hair at all sentences people to death we take it for granted. But what's the difference?

The judgment of the bobbed young woman may be as sound as that of the bald old man. Women are intuitively just.

THREE HUNDRED YEARS ago the first folio of Shakespeare's plays appeared and the world is celebrating that event. Some mourn because in London, when Shakespeare began his

STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN

By Jo Swerling

OFFICER LUNDGREN, SC. M.

Statisticians miss many a good bet. Take the case of Officer Lundgren, for instance. Why did he give up his job as a college professor in order to take on a job as traffic copper? Officer Lundgren says there were 200 reasons.

We mustn't get too editorial in this column, but what are you going to do when you run smack up against an editorial?

This editorial is a big, good-looking Swede who directs traffic at Massachusetts avenue and Newbury street. Officer Albert C. Lundgren started out to become a college professor. He achieved his goal. Then he passed it up. He became a traffic cop. That is the editorial.

Why should a man capable of being a college professor change his vocation to that of traffic policeman? Because it keeps him out in the open air? Quit your kidding. The answer lies not in theory, but in facts—and figures. The figures tell the story best.

When Lundgren was an instructor in botany at Clark University in 1915 he got $1,200 a year. He was offered the head of the department of sciences at Clark. The job carried a salary with it of $1,800 a year. The City of Boston offered him $1,700 a year to be a traffic cop. The problem presented itself to Lundgren, as follows:

Salary as College Professor $1,500.
Salary as Traffic Cop .... $1,700.

By the simple process of subtraction it is evident there are 200 reasons why Lundgren was right in throwing off the professional toga for the police uniform. The war broke in on his problem, and he enlisted. When he came back he made his decision, and he's been on the force ever since.

Live Ones Kept Out of Professions

"Sounds cold-blooded," says Lundgren, "but what are you going to do. As long as they underpay teachers and professors, they're going to keep the live ones out of that profession. It's all right to talk about the dignity of the profession, and its high ideals, and chances for public service. That's bunk. When I graduated from Clark in 1914 I was faced with the same problem that confronts every college graduate—how to make a living. My training was along academic lines. But there wasn't enough money in it.

"And now I wouldn't change even for money, because I've found that being a traffic copper has its thrills and its lessons. As a matter of fact, I'm working in a laboratory every day, just as much as I did in the old days when I worked with fluids and chemicals, mixing and analyzing them. Here I work with live chemicals. Anybody who is interested in humanity ought to get my kind of a job. There are a lot of people who think a chap's a dub because he isn't in a high-brow job. It tickles my funny-bone to notice the difference in the attitude of folks when they see me directing traffic, when they run into me at a lecture, a concert or a reunion of the college hobs."

When Off Duty Haunts Concerts

When Lundgren isn't on his post telling motorists where they get off at, he haunts concerts. He is an accomplished musician himself. The other night he was playing at a wedding in Brockton. He played so expressively that the fuses on the pipe organ blew out, throwing the church into darkness.

This occurred just as the bride and groom started to march up the aisle. The lights were out for fifteen minutes, and everybody was stumbling about in the dark.

"It was all I could do to restrain myself from taking charge and directing the traffic up and down the aisle," grinned Lundgren.

"I do miss my botany," he said. "The only chance I get to study botany now is to look at the flowers on the hats worn by the young women of the Back Bay as they hoof up traffic on my beat. Otherwise I wouldn't trade jobs with Eliot, or Butler, or any professor or dean in America."

Mustn't get too editorial in this column. But perhaps a few editors may wish to write real editorials about Officer Lundgren, Sc. M., to help bring about a condition of affairs whereby more college professors may not be lured to traffic posts because a copper makes more money than a professor.

RABIES EPIDEMIC THREATENS HUB

Crime Trust Formed by Crooks

5 CHILDREN BITTEN BY MAD DOGS

Health Officials Declare Situation Serious; Take Steps to Protect the Public

A rabies epidemic threatens Greater Boston.

Five children have been bitten. Their wounds were so serious all were given the Pasteur treatment.

Three dogs have died this past week at Angell Memorial Hospital from the dread disease.

Health officials are considering drastic measures to prevent a further spread of the rabies.

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, health commissioner of Boston, opposes the muzzling of dogs. So does Dr. H. F. Dalley, superintendent of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

SITUATION IS SERIOUS.

They believe dog owners should keep their pets leashed and under close surveillance, rather than muzzled.

An alarming number of dogs have been treated at Angell Memorial Hospital and other dog institutions the past week. The situation has grown rapidly worse the last few days.

Dr. Dalley, in a statement to the Boston American today, said:

"There is a serious epidemic in the city and surrounding suburbs. The epidemic is undoubtedly more widespread than any of former years. One of the chief factors is the great number of stray or uncared for dogs.

"The Pasteur treatment, which may be given by physicians or at any hospital, is the most effective remedy for persons bitten. The prophylactic vaccine now being used has proved effective in the treatment of dogs.

CALLS MUZZLING UNJUST.

"There are two forms of rabies. There is the dumb rabies which has different symptoms than the more prevalent form. Dumb rabies do not cause the dog to foam at the mouth. It shows itself in a physical condition and is markedly increased affection by the dog toward its owner. The dog will not be separated from its owner and will attempt to lick his or her hand continuously. The animal's jaw gradually becomes paralyzed.

"The more dangerous form of the disease is more apt to afflict stray dogs or those not particularly domesticated.

"Muzzling of dogs is unjust. The animal has no protection against stray dogs and the great number that will not be muzzled. It is the uncared and stray dogs that are a menace."

So far no one of the five little victims of the mad dogs have displayed alarming symptoms. Physicians think all will recover.

While playing in the kitchen of her home Helen McTavish, ten years old, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. McTavish of No. 25 Dalton terrace, Brighton, was suddenly attacked by her pet, who leaped at the child's throat, sinking his fangs into the flesh of her mouth. She was treated at the City Hospital.

WOUNDS CAUTERIZED.

Robert Silverman, twelve years old, son of Mendel Silverman of No. 65 Emerald street, South End, was at play in the street near his home when attacked by an apparently mad dog, who bit him savagely on the arms and legs. His wounds were cauterized at the City Hospital.

In the North End of the city three other children were bitten by dogs, their wounds being treated by Dr. Joseph Si. Angelo of No. 429 Hanover street.

Carmello Bartalotta, ten years old, of No. 6 Greenough Lane, while in the doorway of her home, was set upon by a brindle bulldog, who bit her in the right arm.

Carmello Maligiogiano, nine years old, of No. 473 Hanover street, was bitten on the legs when attacked while at play by a black dog.

Piere La Chiano, eleven years old, of No. 286 Hanover street, was also bitten while at play.

DERELYS PERDUE.

Los Angeles, April 24.—What's in a name? Lots and lots, says Derelys Perdue and for this reason she is seeking an injunction against Film Booking Inc., distributing agents for the Robertson-Cole photoplays, to prevent them from booking her under the name of Ann.

The concern, she says, staged a popularity contest to choose a first name for her. Ann was the choice, so immediately the company billed her everywhere under that name. She alleges this causes her much mental anguish, loss of weight and has decreased her professional efficiency.

ALARMED OVER TURK ATTITUDE TO FRANCE

Lausanne, April 24, (By the Associated Press).—Resumption of the peace negotiations between the Turks and the allies has given rise to the suggestion that Turkey's expressed desire to cast off France as her economic pilot may lead to difficulties at the conference.

Most of the Turkish debt is owed to France, whose nationals also have a preponderence of the economic holdings in the domain now governed from Angoren.

Activities of bands of Turkish irregulars along the borders of Syria, a French mandate, appear to have entered into the situation, resulting in the dispatch of General Weygand to Syria. The troop movements, it is believed, indicate that Turkey may be seeking to embarrass France.

The first day of the conference passed without mention of rences sions. Joseph C. Grew, head of the American delegation, informed the delegates of the United States' desire that the commercial opportunities of all nations be safeguarded.

Philadelphia, April 24.—A "crime trust" for the protection of criminals has been organized here, Superintendent of Police William B. Mills said today. Twelve bands of holdup men are operating here, the superintendent declared.

"By banding together," said Mills, "and aiding each other in case of trouble, by obtaining lawyers and advancing funds, the criminal element has strengthened its position, not only in this city, but in almost every large city of the country."

JUANITA HANSEN DENIES LIQUOR LED HER TO USE DOPE

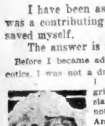
DISPUTES CLAIM THERE IS NO CURE FOR DRUG HABIT

By JUANITA HANSEN

I have been asked a hundred times whether or not booze was a contributing factor to the habit of drugs from which I saved myself.

The answer is no.

Before I became addicted to narcotics, I was not a drinker. While in the grip of the dope slavery, I was not a drinker. And I am not a drinker today.



Juanita Hansen.

I don't know in how many cases liquor helped unfortunates to acquire the taste for more deadly poison. I know only that in my case it was not a factor in any way.

One of the most beautiful results of the series of articles I have been writing is the proof I have received that I am not the only one who has been ABSOLUTELY AND FOREVER CURED OF THE DRUG HABIT.

I have received scores of letters from men and women, relating experiences similar to mine, telling of freedom from drug after months, sometimes years, of addiction. A certain alleged expert in New York is quoted as saying that for the drug addict there is no cure.

That is not only a lie, but it is a black, a vicious, a terrible lie.

I have proved that to my own satisfaction, and letters I receive furnish much proof in substantiation.

I want my readers to read every word of this letter, which I received yesterday from a Boston man:

HUB MAN'S MESSAGE.

"I want to tell you about my experience with drugs. For twenty years I used morphine, cocaine and other drugs which you so aptly term playthings of the devil. In 1890 I was injured by a kick from a horse and I was laid up for six weeks. My injury caused the most excruciating pain. My physician gave me morphine by hype and also left some quarter-grain tablets to use if I needed them.

"They did dull my pain, but it would have been better for me to have suffered a thousand times that pain than to acquire that deadly habit. At first I could not understand the craving which haunted me night and day. But I remember all the little white pills and took one of them. It stilled the craving. For a short time I was as happy as a child. But then the craving came back, and with a sinking of the heart I realized what had happened.

CUT DOWN DOSES.

"I went to the doctor and told him. He said he could do nothing for me. I found out later he was a drug addict himself. For twenty years I used drugs, taking on an average of twenty grains a day, by hypo. One day my brother-in-law, who knew about my habit, made a remark to me which decided me to cure myself, or die. He said, 'Well, I see you're in for life.'

"Medicine did me no good whatever. I had to effect my own cure. I began by cutting my daily dose of morphine to ten grains—right in half. It wasn't easy, but I sweated myself into doing it. Then I cut the dose down to eight grains, then to six, then to four, and finally to three. As each reduction was made, it seemed to become easier. When I was down to three grains, it occurred to me that the next step would be to cut it out altogether.

FREE FOR 10 YEARS.

"I threw my needle and my syringe away. That was over ten years ago. I have never taken one grain of morphine since. I haven't the slightest appetite for it today. I look and feel younger today than I did thirty years ago, when I was in the grip of the drug habit. When the critical moment came and I decided to quit altogether, I asked God to make my suffering as easy as possible.

"This may sound exaggerated, possibly incredible. But I have proofs and records which are at your disposal or at the disposal of any skeptic.

"The marks on my arm—the insignia of the drug addict—are there still. But that is all that is left except a great gratitude.

"You are doing a wonderful work, and I want you to know that thousands are reading your message, for it is a message of hope."

The people who are working to eradicate this evil seem to be interested only in one phase of the case—to stop the supply. Why not concentrate on a better way—by limiting the demand and then eliminating the demand?

It can be done. The man who wrote the above letter did it. I did it. Anybody can do it.

Another article from Miss Hansen's Page of Life will appear in tomorrow's Boston American.

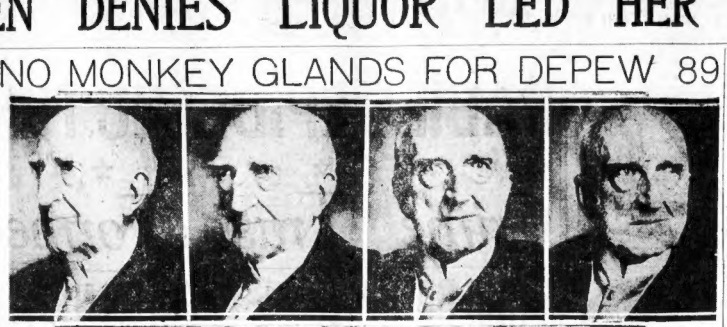
ELOPING LYNN NURSE GIVES FATHER JOLT

With the stage set for a return to a Trenton, N. J., hospital, where she was a nurse, Miss Zilpha Bixby, twenty-five years old, daughter of Carl Bixby, of No. 27 Walcott road, Lynn, changed her plans and went on a honeymoon.

News of just what had happened reached her father when he read, a week later, a letter naively signed, "Mrs. George Quigley."

Arriving in New York, Miss Bixby met Quigley, a New York public accountant, and accompanied him to St. Paul's Church, where she became his wife. The engagement, although not made public, was known to the bride's father.

NO MONKEY GLANDS FOR DEPEW 89



MOVIES OF CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW ON HIS BIRTHDAY

A good wife, a good diet and no medicine.

That's the recipe of Chauncey Depew for longevity, given out on his eighty-ninth birthday.

Surrounded by flowers sent by friends, his desk heaped with birthday greetings from President Harding, King George of England and other fairly well-known men, Chauncey said:

"No monkey glands for me.

"No life-giving serums. No cures. No fads. No medicine. My great recreation in life is making speeches. I have twelve volumes of my printed speeches. I expect to make many more—at least a speech a year until I reach my 100th birthday."

work, none of his plays is now on the boards. But that is not important. There have not been, all told, half a dozen actors or actresses fit to play Shakespeare, able to read his lines intelligently. Unless you can get more out of "Hamlet" with your own book and lamp than you could by listening to a young gentleman with handsome legs holding a skull in his hand and talking deep down in his chest, you don't get much out of Shakespeare.

RABBI SILVERMAN is distressed by modern marriage. Young people get married with a mental reservation, providing for "trial marriage," and he "could name names."

Civilization makes us want three things: "Wealth, power and pleasure," says the Rabbi. Some try for a fourth, "self approval."

Men have always struggled for WEALTH, POWER, PLEASURE. And in their struggling they have developed civilization, science, literature, everything worth while. Supreme wisdom uses our feeble, selfish desires to make us do useful work.

"TRIAL MARRIAGE" is nothing new. Every marriage was originally a trial marriage. We are gradually working up to permanent marriage. It's a long way off for the majority, because they are not fit for it—the men especially.

PAN-AMERICANS DEADLOCKED ON ARMS ISSUE

Santiago, April 24 (By the Associated Press).—Pan American conference circles are watching with interest the unfolding of the diplomatic drama that is being played by the A. B. C. governments to bring about a happy climax of the negotiations to limit armament.

It was said today the most critical moments of the drama are now in prospect as a result of President Alessandri's proposal for a conference of the A. B. C. presidents and the President of Uruguay.

With slight prospect that the deadlock between Argentina and Brazil could be broken at the present conference, the Chilean President suggested the meeting of the presidents in the hope that the executives themselves might reach an agreement. The Brazilian and Uruguayan presidents apparently were willing to negotiate, but President De Alvear of Argentina issued a statement to the effect that he would not discuss armaments at the proposed conference.

The projected presidents' meeting is now considered to have been shorn of its fundamental purpose, and although there is no indication that it will be called off, the delegates are wondering what other means could be taken to break the deadlock.

ANGRY SUBWAY CROWD MOBS PICKPOCKET

Threats of violence in the Washington street station of the Cambridge subway followed the arrest of a pickpocket, the first to be arrested since a special campaign against the nimble fingered artists was inaugurated by District Attorney O'Brien.

The thief, Harry Gold, No. 625 Columbia avenue, was arrested by Patrolman Mark Morrison, who caught him in the act of taking $80 from the pockets of Fred H. Mosher, No. 29 Washington street, Cambridge.

Crowds awaiting trains witnessed the arrest, and made a rush for the prisoner. Patrolman Morrison was forced to use his night stick to ward off the angry mob, and it was not until Special Officer Michael E. Hourihan came to his assistance that he was able to take his prisoner to the police station.

Gold was held in $5,000 bail, at the orders of District Attorney O'Brien, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

AUTO SPEEDER INJURES TWO; GETS AWAY

Mendon, April 24.—Two persons were injured, one seriously, when a large touring car, driven at breakneck speed by a man who had stolen it in Milford, crashed into a crowd of young people on Maple street.

Helen Hartshorn, sixteen years old, also of this town, was knocked down and suffered bruises and lacerations.

Olga Carlson, one of the party heard the car tearing along the street and shouted a warning, but the two victims were unable to jump to safety before the car hit them.

The car was the property of Frank E. Norcross of Milford, and was stolen from in front of the Milford Opera House.

Following the accident a man who witnessed the crash jumped into his automobile and gave chase to the fleeing autoist, who ran his car up a banking, where it hit a clump of trees and was wrecked.

The driver leaped out and fled. He is still at large.

Poisoning Kills Woman

Mrs. Mary Delaney, forty-eight years old, colored, of No. 80 Windsor street, Roxbury, died at the City Hospital of poisoning. The poison, physicians believe, was a form of mercury. Friends of the victim say she took it by mistake for medicine prescribed by a physician. She was employed as a cook.

A HOME-MADE GRAY HAIR REMEDY

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy With Barbo Compound.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ½ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

U. S. NAVY NOT TO HUNT BIG RUM ARMADA

Washington, April 24.—The mighty rum armada that harries the Atlantic seaboard won a bloodless victory with the Treasury statement that the ships will not be molested until Congress meets again.

The recently devised plan to employ the Navy to sweep the liquor ships from the seas has been dropped, it was stated, for the reason that there are no funds available for this purpose.

The Treasury stated that to carry out the plan would require an appropriation of great proportions, and very probably special legislation.

In making this information public the Treasury revealed for the first time the plan the government had in mind. It called for the employment of a patrol alongside the entire Pacific and Atlantic coast, with the use of powerful searchlights at strategic points.

AMERICANS SPEND $1,000,000 ON FETES AT DUKE OF YORK'S WEDDING

GIFTS ARE LAVISHED ON COUPLE

London Labor Condemns Extravagance Over Nuptials as Thousands Are Starving

London, April 24.—London is crowded with visitors from all parts of the empire, ranging from royal personages from far off India to the peasants from the rural counties of England, come to join in the celebration Thursday of the wedding of the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon.

The gala week opened with the dual celebration of the festival of St. George and the birthday of Shakespeare. There is a great rush for seats along the route of the wedding processions, and many of the choicest places have been obtained by thousands of Americans, who have completed the job of jamming the already overcrowded hotels.

Americans are taking a prominent part in the gayeties incidental to the wedding. It is estimated that they have spent $1,000,000 on fetes to date.

DRESSMAKERS BUSY.

Dressmakers and milliners are working night and day to finish the beautiful gowns ordered by peeresses and ladies of society who will be among the chosen 2,000 to witness the ceremony.

The king and queen are beginning a week of brilliant entertainments. They received guests of all ranks of society at Buckingham Palace, where the wedding presents, valued at more than a million dollars, are exhibited in the picture gallery.

One of the most notable gatherings of "Duchess Betty's Week," will be the birthday party of Princess Mary at Buckingham Palace, tomorrow, when George Henry Hubert Lascelles, the first grandson of the king and queen, will share the honors with his idolized mother.

MANY COSTLY PRESENTS.

Diamond tiaras, ropes of pearls, diamond necklaces, ermine capes, sapphire bracelets and hundreds of other articles of jewelry dear to the heart of any bride are numbered among the four hundred costly wedding presents already received by the bride-to-be.

The splendor of the presents surpasses even those bestowed on Princess Mary.

The King's gifts included an ermine cape, a diamond tiara, with necklace, brooch, earrings and bracelet to match. The Queen's gift comprised a diamond and sapphire necklace, brooch bracelet and pendant, a full cutlery service and ancient candelabra. The bride's parents gave a diamond tiara, pearl necklace and rope of pearls. Princess Mary showed a practical turn of mind by giving a quantity of linen, initialed "E. A."

CHAMBER BACKS FENS FOR FIRE ALARM SITE

Endorsement of the Mayor's proposal to establish Boston's fire alarm signal station in the Back Bay Fens is contained in a letter sent Governor Cox today by Thomas J. Kenny, chairman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce committee on municipal and metropolitan affairs.

The letter requests the Governor to approve the bill granting authority to erect the station. With the letter is a report made by Kenny's committee and approved by the board of directors of the chamber.

The report states that although the present fire alarm service on Bristol street is in a fireproof building, "it is in a badly congested and hazardous district, and the quarters are extremely crowded and cannot be arranged to take care of any expansion which, as the city grows, is absolutely necessary."

"The Back Bay Fens," says the report, "appear to be an admirable location for a new station, mainly because it provides the necessary isolation, but also because it is reasonably central.

"This latter point is important because of the cost of cable and ducts in which to lay them which would have to be built and laid were the station to be removed any great distance from the present location.

"It is also desirable to have the cables approach the building from different directions. This also is easily accomplished in the Fens location."

Home of Ghost Who 'Hurled Dishes' Ruined by Fire

Londonderry, N. H., April 24.—The habitat of the "dish-throwing ghost," known as the Everett Bagley farmhouse, and an ancient landmark here, has been destroyed by fire.

The stories of its occupancy by Mrs. Sedley Long concerning the tactics of a spook which she claimed was "destroying" her dishes drew police detectives, newspapermen and students of spiritualism to her home. None but Mrs. Sedley, however, witnessed the ghostly manifestations.

SHIP RUM TO BOSTON IN DECAYED FISH

Lewiston, Me., April 24.—Liquor packed in decayed fish so that the more distasteful odor might serve as a camouflage during shipment is the newest trick of liquor smugglers discovered here.

Nearly half of the liquor shipped to Boston, it has been learned, is labeled fish, looks like fish, smells like fish—but beneath the surface isn't fish. The scheme is said to have worked successfully for several months.

WOMEN HUNGER STRIKERS IN BAD SHAPE

Dublin, April 24.—Large crowds of Republican sympathizers gathered today before the gates of the prison where Maude Gonne MacBride, Miss Ryan and other women captives are on hunger strike in protest against their arrest by the Free State.

Republicans claim that some of the women are in serious condition. Miss Ryan has gone without food for thirty days. She sent out word to friends that she would starve herself to death unless released. She rejected the conditions upon which she would be freed.

A report was circulated here that Eamon De Valera had succeeded in making his get-away in disguise and was on his way to the United States, but it was found to be untrue. De Valera is understood to be in hiding near this city.

Official announcement was made that seventy-one prisoners who escaped from the Curragh detention camp by a secret tunnel have been recaptured.

RYAN'S LOVE SUIT MOTION IS DENIED

New York, April 24.—Supreme Court Justice Benedict in Brooklyn Court, denied motions of Clendenin J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, prominent Wall street figure, that action in which he is made defendant, be transferred from Nassau county to New York county. Judge Benedict also denied a motion to strike out references to his drinking habits as irrelevant. Ryan is being sued for $500 by Miss Muriel Sharp, in connection with a contract she alleges Ryan made with her to use one room in her East Fifty-first street apartment.

Cocoanut Oil Makes a Splendid Shampoo

USE MULSIFIED

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soap and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

SIX-DAY DANCE MARATHON CONTINUES ON 80-FOOT BOAT AT SEA

DOCTORS AND NURSES KEEP EYE ON NEW YORK GLIDERS

By CORINNE RICH,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, April 24.—A six-day long-distance dancing marathon, international in character and the only thing of its class in the history of mankind, is in full swing in a Broadway dance hall.

To establish once and for all the really-truly champion of the world.

"With these champions out-record-ing one another over the country, the thing might as well be settled right now," L. J. Brecker, manager of the hall thought. "One hundred and forty-four hours ought to be everybody's Waterloo."

EIGHT COUPLES ENTERED.

So he issued individual invitations over the wire to champions from coast to coast. And when the gong sounded for the start eight couples, determined to do or die, glided on to the floor.

According to an old law, allowing no more than twelve hours for an endurance contest in New York and calculated to protect humanity against bicycle races, the dance-hall will be closed by the police, Mr. Brecker thinks.

80-FOOT BOAT BALL ROOM.

"So I rigged up an eighty-foot boat as a ball room to float just beyond the three-mile limit," he said. "A number of big trucks will be ready to take the dancers from the hall to Sheepshead Bay and the boat.

"Then at 9 o'clock Sunday night the race will be brought to a grand close here, if there are any dancers lasting that long."

A silver loving cup three feet high is to be given the victorious individual or couple, and a whole system of cash prizes distributed among the contestants, long-winded or short.

DOCTORS AND NURSES.

Mr. Brecker has taken the marathon seriously and hasn't overlooked a single detail for the comfort of the sea-faring ones.

Three doctors and day and night nurses are to be on board. They will examine the dancer-patients every three hours as to heart action, respiration, temperature and blood pressure. An emergency hospital will take care of casualties.

"A great stock of food has been placed on board the yacht and a cook will see that it's good," the manager further explained. "Regular food, too, like ham and eggs—not for the dancers themselves, for they are on diet, but for the large number of substitute dancers, for the judges, guests, reporters and crew.

QUARTERS FOR JUDGES.

"Of course, there are sleeping quarters also for the judges, who will relay in fours. The judges must get their rest."

At regular intervals the newspaper people will send reports of the marathon's progress by wireless to their offices. In between times they will thank their lucky stars for a soft assignment.

PADEREWSKI IS PAID $460,000 IN 7 MONTHS

New York, April 24.—It pays to be one of the world's leading musicians.

Ignace Jan Paderewski since last November has earned $460,000, an average of $7,000 for each of his sixty-six recitals. Of this sum $9,400 was taken in last Sunday at Carnegie Hall.

That Paderewski has been doing better than pugilists and moving picture actors, in spite of his five years away from the piano, will be seen from a few figures. While plasterers at twenty dollars a day may make colleges professors envious, the latter may get some consolation from the fact that the intellect is not always on the short end financially.

It is estimated that the battering Jack Dempsey has earned less than $750,000 in the ring. Incidentals, such as moving pictures and theatrical work, have probably brought him $500,000 more.

BEATS DEMPSEY EARNINGS.

But the total must be scattered over a four-year period, dating from his acquisition of the title in 1919. This would average him $150,000 for six months. In the same period Mr. Paderewski has earned three times that sum.

Charlie Chaplin is said to have made less than $800,000 in his best year. Douglas Fairbanks is reputed to have taken in $600,000 in a single year.

On the diamond Babe Ruth stands at the head of the dollar list. His contract calls for $50,000 a year for three years, with an option to renew it for two years. Incidentals from movie contracts and other things might give him $100,000 more.

AND HE GETS BETTER.

Ignace Paderewski can work the greater part or even all of the year if he so desires. Each of his sixty-six performances since November lasted little less than three hours.

Movie actors, prize fighters and ball players lose their means of bringing in large earnings as they grow older. There is not much chance of a comeback after middle age. But as one of the world's leading musicians, Ignace Jan Paderewski, at the age of sixty-three years, is going stronger than ever.

New Show of Vincent Club Girls Scores a Great Hit, Declares Miss Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

SOMEONE should have paged Mr. Ziegfeld and taken him to the Plymouth Theatre yesterday afternoon to see the dress rehearsal of "Rush and Wrangle," the Vincent Club show. Mr. Ziegfeld would have seen a very good show.

The best of the whole performance was that you couldn't tell which was really best. There was, for instance an entrancing Snowball Ballet, headed by Marian Venno, in which the girls wore saucy costumes of white satin with gaily dancing snowballs. Quite a contrast to the wonderfully well done Russian Dance led by Mrs. George C. Crocker, Jr., with the heavy peasant costumes, bulky boots and jerky motions.

Blonde-haired Polly Cabot made a corking leader for the Herdsmen Dance, in which the cleverly disguised Vincentites stepped their whips right smartly—the cracks all coming at once, too.

The Ford song, done by Peggy Porter—didn't she make a stunning "man," though?—Laura Taylor, Rosamond Aide, Florence Penno and Nell White, was a sure-fire hit. Of course, the song had a great deal to do with Boston and what a nice place Boston was, but it would have been a hit anyway. Speaking of singing, you couldn't have heard Grace Sargent and tiny Frances Weld without wanting to hear them again. They sang quite a few duets—they had to because the audience made them—some of them about moonbeams and others more jazzy. Their Chinese costumes were most becoming, and the ornate headpieces very gorgeous.

It was after the procession of Black Buddha had filed upon the stage, and the natives were all set to pay much homage to the all-powerful Black Buddha, that graceful Bertie Braggiotti did her dance to the Buddha. This in itself was worth attending the show. Her sister, Francesca, was supposed to have done this dance, but owing to illness she was unable to appear. Miss Bertie not only substituted for her in this dance, but also played the role of leading man, "Prince Ivan."

MISS BERTHE BRAGGIOTTI

Miss Braggiotti, prominent among the stars of "Rush and Wrangle," which the Vincent Club is presenting this week at the Plymouth Theatre.

THE "Arctic Blues," sung by saucy Mrs. A. Lynde Cochrane, was one of the hits of the second act. Mrs. Cochrane—who was "Princess Sonia" in the play—wore a fetching costume of black velvet, generously banded with fur. She made a very girlish-looking figure, and it is hard to realize that she is the mother of a young family.

Right after came the Snowmen, who, to borrow from the vernacular, were a "riot." They looked just like snowmen, too, with their white suits, trimmed with huge black buttons, and the high, black silk hats perched impudently on their snow-covered heads. They even sported long black pipes in their mouths, which, however, they didn't smoke. Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow (Rosa Fessenden), a bride of last January, led this jolly troupe.

Miss Barbara Foster headed the drill—time-honored feature of the Vincent shows. This year it was called a Penguin Drill, the girls cleverly costumed to look like the queer birds who inhabit the cold regions. And how those tall penguins—the drill members are always well set up—did "column left" and "right wheel"!

The nimble quartet which presented the ski dance, with Lydia Bullard as head skiist, certainly deserve no small praise for the skillful way in which they manipulated their skis. Their costumes consisted of cream-color knickers and blue jackets with jaunty caps to match.

Probably the most gorgeous number of all was the Aurora Borealis. The entire scene of the second act was laid in a huge ice-cave, and during this feature the beautiful and vari-colored rays of the northern lights played about the entrance to the cave. First dainty Louise Fessenden appeared in shimmering white and sang a song about the Aurora Borealis, while one by one eight girls slowly entered the cave. The colors of their gorgeous costumes of shimmering stuff ranged all the way from soft gold to a warm scarlet. Each wore a high, glistening head-piece.

Mrs. Maurice M. Osborne as "Ekogmut" and Miss Katherine Lane as "Isi" sweetheart supplied many laughs with their duets and dialogue.

"Rush and Wrangle," written by Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman, may be seen at the Plymouth Theatre tonight and Saturday evening, and on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons of this week. The remainder of the week has been taken by the Hasty Pudding Club, which is presenting its annual show, "Take a Brace."

Four o'clock IN THE AFTERNOON

Four o'clock in any office—anywhere. Bill Jones looks up from his work and turns to Tom Griffith.

"That's a good idea! I believe I'll try it!"

"Try what?" asks Tom, questioningly.

"A mid-afternoon cup of Coffee," was Bill's reply. "Listen to this—I cut it out of a newspaper last night.

"'Right at the peak of the day's duties it pays to pause for a chummy, cheery cup of Coffee. It is a stimulus to effort in the office or in the home—it coaxes cheerful spirits and clear-thinking for the rest of the day.'"

"Sounds good," admitted Tom, "and I'd like to try it, too. Let's go. It will only take a few minutes, and this surely has been a tough day."

Every afternoon now, Bill Jones and Tom Griffith go out for a good hot cup of Coffee.

"Greatest thing in the world for business men," says Bill, while Tom nods approvingly. "It lifts you up mentally and physically and gets you by the zero hour that comes in every busy day. I do more work now from four to five or five-thirty than I used to do all afternoon."

If You Handle Money, Use Lifebuoy Regularly

A soiled dollar bill, under a microscope, is an evil sight. Cashiers know its danger. But everyone is exposed to the menace of dirty money.

Any slight skin abrasion may become infected. But more serious still is the habit so many people have of touching mouth, nose, eyes and hair with their hands, thus exposing the body to disease germs.

It is advisable for those who frequently handle money to protect health by keeping hands antiseptically pure with Lifebuoy Health Soap. Always use it before eating and before touching your wife and children.

The rich, creamy, sanative lather of Lifebuoy penetrates deeply into every pore, thoroughly rinsing out impurities, deodorizing, and leaving only the antiseptic protection of Lifebuoy.

Keeps Skin Healthy

Have you noticed how men everywhere prefer Lifebuoy? Men know good soap. Their healthy skin proves it. Lifebuoy is so pure, and its healthful palm-fruit oil and cocoanut oil are so soothing and healing that frequent washing keeps the skin soft and free from blemishes.

Wives and mothers—protect the health of your children and husband by keeping a cake of Lifebuoy always ready at every place where there is running water.

The color of pure, unbleached palm-fruit oil is red—so Lifebuoy is RED.

58 PRIZES FOR BICYCLE CARNIVAL

Is your bicycle ready for the fourth annual bicycle carnival to be conducted by the Boston American on Sunday afternoon, May 6?

If not, you'd better get busy and put it in condition, as the American's bicycle carnival is going to be the biggest event of its kind ever staged in this country. If you are a bicycle rider you will surely want to take part.

It costs nothing to enter. Just clip the coupon in an adjoining column, fill in your name and address, and then all you have to do is wait for the BIG DAY. Everybody is invited to participate. If your bicycle is of Civil War vintage you are just as welcome as the person with the very newest model.

LIST OF 58 PRIZES.

The bicycle editor has good news for cycling fans today—the list of prizes has been increased to 58.

GEORGE BRESLIN

Every one of them will be given away free to boys, girls, men and women taking part in the carnival contests at Franklin Field.

Before the contests are conducted there will be a bicycle parade from Copley square, Boston, along smooth city and park boulevards to Franklin Field.

This ride is six miles long. The pace will be so slow that boys and girls of seven or eight years of age will have no difficulty in keeping their place in the procession. Mothers and fathers need have no fear of permitting their kiddies to enter, as racing or "scorching" will be ABSOLUTELY FORBIDDEN. This is not a race. The sole purpose of the carnival is to get children and grown-ups into the open air for a pleasant Sunday afternoon outing.

STARTS AT 2 P. M.

The bicycle parade will start at 2 p. m. The route lies over some of the smoothest roads in the city, with practically no up-grade. A careful study of roads has been made with this end in view. From the scenic viewpoint, no finer route could be selected. Much of the route lies along roads noted for their beauty.

As soon as the cyclists arrive at Franklin Field several contests will be conducted. Prizes will be awarded for perfection in riding, best decorated bicycles, etc. There will be seven classes. Thirteen prizes, including a first quality Indian bicycle, a gold watch, large silver loving cup and gold medal, are offered in the class for best decorated bicycles. It is expected there will be many entrants in this class and that some clever ideas in the way of decoration will be carried out. This class is open to both sexes of all ages.

KIDDIES PROTECTED.

A big entry list is also expected in the toy vehicle class which will be open to boys and girls, eight years of age and under, riding velocipedes, tricycles, toy automobiles, etc. Parents are assured that their kiddies will be properly cared for. With the co-operation of the Boston park and recreation department officials the American's bicycle editor is arranging for a special reserved section with police protection for all children taking part. Every child who enters must be accompanied by not more than one adult. Six fine prizes are offered in this class for best appearance.

Fifteen dandy prizes, including a first quality "Puritan" bicycle, gold watch and gold medal, have been hung up for boys of fifteen years and under who demonstrate to the judges that they ride best.

GOLD WATCH PRIZES.

Another corking gold watch will be presented to the male rider over fifteen years who proves the excellence of his riding. Many "old timers," who rode daily before flivvers monopolized the highways, are oiling up their "highboys" in anticipation of the American's carnival. It's going to be a day of days for the "old timers," as they will have a place of honor at the head of the procession. Four good prizes have been offered for competition among the "old timers" at Franklin Field at the conclusion of the parade.

To very bicyclist who sends his name and address, thus entering for the carnival, a handsome bicycle certificate, made especially for this event, will be sent free. Another beautiful souvenir will be given away, too. Get busy NOW. Clip the coupon and enter for the big outing.

STAGE AND SCREEN

BOSTON AMERICAN

INGENUE SOON TO BE STAR, SHE HOPES

Supporting a star of the magnitude of Al Jolson carries its own disappointment for the ambitious player striving for glory while the star grabs off the spotlight. But not even the spotlight that follows Jolson through "Bombo" at the Shubert leaves Mildred Keats completely in darkness—in fact, she furnishes her own light whenever it is necessary.

This nineteen-year-old ingenue, who adds vivacity and beauty to Mr. Jolson's darkened comedy, expects to be featured in a musical comedy of her own in another season.

Miss Keats is the daughter of H. L. Keats of New York City, who is developing patents for the Federal Government. She was born in Portland, Ore., so few years ago that it seems almost impossible that she should have accomplished so much in the theatre, but for all that, she is a stage veteran, having appeared as toe dancer with Raymond Hitchcock in "Hitchy-Koo" back in 1918. She had then attained to the mature age of some fifteen years, plus.

The first engagement led to another of quite different character, for, from a dancer, she leaped promptly into the cast of "The Rise of Silas Lapham," as leading woman for James K. Hackett. The young woman's versatility was more than demonstrated by these successive opportunities, and she next branched out into vaudeville, with the song writer, Harry Carroll.

Her work in the ingenue role of "Pitter Patter," a musical play, caught the attention of the New York critics, and now she is winning new friends by her grace and beauty in the Al Jolson show, in which she has several important numbers.

FURNISHES HER OWN LIGHT WITH JOLSON

MILDRED KEATS

Adds vivacity and beauty to "Bombo" now playing at Shubert Theatre.

GAY BURLESQUE AT WALDRON'S CASINO

"Flashlights of 1923," scintillating with comedy, melody, gay dancing and colorful scenic effects, gave delightful entertainment to matinee and evening audiences at Waldron's Casino yesterday. For good measure there were vaudeville and dramatic moving pictures to round out the three-in-one continuous program.

Jack Callahan and J. B. Hamp are the "flashlights." They are assisted by a fast-working cast and an equally capable chorus of twenty pretty girls. This company presents a brilliant musical revue under the title of "Americans Abroad."

The feminine side of the show is rich in talent and beauty. Sarah Hyatt, prima donna, sang in lyric soprano with cultivated effect. Her rendition of an aria from "Mme. Butterfly," in a winged costume, was exceptionally well done.

The chorus is a high grade one for looks as well as for singing and dancing, so the ensembles were all that could be desired.

POLA NEGRI IN BIG FILM AT ORPHEUM

Superbly portrayed and produced, "Bella Donna," Pola Negri's first American made picture, was cordially greeted by capacity audiences at Loew's Orpheum yesterday. "Bella Donna" is a gripping story, as all who have read Robert Hichen's novel must know, and in the delineation of the title role Pola Negri proves herself a talented dramatic and emotional actress. Miss Negri is supported by Conway Tearle, Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson.

Vaudeville of the smartest type was also presented, the feature act being "Dolly's Dream," a fantastic fable of Fairyland. Frank Gaby was a diverting entertainer in his original impression, and Joseph E. Bernard and Ethel Adamson gave a delightful comedy sketch, "Are You She." Other acts were Tuck and Clare; Conroy and Howard and Frank J. Sibley and Co.

Buster Keaton was also shown in "The Balloonatic." A late news pictorial also was shown.

MONTAGU LOVE SEES HIMSELF AT STATE

Montagu Love, one of the screen's popular players, will be in Boston today. Mr. Love is spending the day here preparatory to his sailing for Italy, accompanied by Miss Barabara LaMarr, the screen vamp, where both are to go on "location" for the filming of their next photoplay. Incidentally, the management of Loew's State Theatre has prevailed upon Mr. Love to appear in person at that playhouse this evening. A strange coincident is the fact that Mr. Love also appears as one of the featured players with Alice Brady in "The Leopardess," which is being shown at the State this week.

Coming Plays

Harry Delf in "Sun Showers" will come to the Wilbur next Monday for a Summer run. Mr. Delf is not only the star of the attraction, but is also credited with having written the book, lyrics and score.

"The Monster," another of the season's crop of thrillers, is announced as the next attraction at the Plymouth, opening next Monday.

Owen Davis' play, "Sinners," will be presented at the St. James Theatre next week. The play has never been seen in Boston.

ELTINGE HEADS BIG BILL AT KEITH'S

The audience at eKith's last night witnessed the rivalry of a group of stars of the future and a certain star of the past.

The stars of the future consisted of a dazzling entertainment by a group of the prettiest girls ever assembled in a vaudeville act. Let them not be anonymous. They are Jessie Fordyce, Pearl Hamilton, Violet Hamilton, Betty Moore, Joan Page and Helen Schroeder.

They are the pick of Broadway's musical shows, and from the manner in which they got over, it is not indiscreet to predict that in the future—in the very near future—each of these clever singing and dancing girls will have her name up in lights all by herself.

The star of the past—and for that matter he is a star of today, for he was never better—was Julian Eltinge. Julian's still the fascinating widow, still the peer of them all when it comes to impersonating the fair, as it were, sex. His demure mannerisms, his coy posturings, his dazzling gowns, won scope from the audience. It is impossible to become accustomed to the wonder of Eltinge's art. Paradoxical as it sounds, he is still the equal of all the female impersonators.

Mr. Fitzgibbon, the Nut who hilariously acclaimed by those way favor this sort of entertainment, Rita Gould sang almost as beautifully as she looks. What's the matter with all those Broadway managers, letting a gal like Rita run around in vaudeville? She belongs in a show.

Also on the bill were "Rube" Clifford, Al Striker, Weyth & Wynn and A. H. Lilla & Company.

Probably one of the best vaudeville bills ever shown in Boston.

STATE BALLROOM HAS NEW COOLING SYSTEM

A cooling system of modern construction is installed in the State Theatre ballroom, where dansants are conducted Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. The State Theatre Ballroom ranks as the foremost public dance hall in Boston, being of the most modern construction and the largest in floor area. A courteous staff of attendants are always on hand to provide for the comfort of its patrons. A dance-compelling and jazz symphonic orchestra of twelve musicians furnishes the music.

BENEFIT SHOW FOR SELWYN THEATRE MEN

Through the generosity of Messrs. Selwyn, Channing Pollock and Fred G. Wright, manager of the Selwyn Theatre, next Monday evening's performance of "The Fool" will be given as a benefit for Actress Ilka Keen and Howard Halpin, the box office men of the theatre. Both Mr. Keen and Mr. Halpin have for many years served in this capacity, the former having been associated with the old Boston Museum.

Remaining Plays

HOLLIS — "Lightnin'," a play of pleasing sentiment, with more than an average amount of simple comedy.

* * *

SHUBERT — Al Jolson in "Bombo"; an entertainment that gives its energetic star an opportunity to work overtime.

* * *

WILBUR—Helen Hayes in "To The Ladies"; a spirited comedy of many amusing incidents. The last week.

* * *

TREMONT — "Six Cylinder Love," with Ernest Truex; a comedy of extravagance, in which there is an expensive automobile.

* * *

MAJESTIC — "Gaities of 1923," which may be generally described as one of the prevailing types of revues.

* * *

COLONIAL — Mitzi in "Minnie and Me," a comedy with music in which the star's personality and talent is a great help.

* * *

SELWYN — "The Fool." Channing Pollock's play of moral and human interest. One of the season's real hits.

"HONORS EVEN" AT ST. JAMES

"Honors Are Even," which Bel Cooper Megrue says is "the best play I have ever written," was brought back to Boston at the St. James Theatre by the Boston Stock Company and those who were on hand for the opener gave it a reception that will not soon be forgotten.

Embracing humor, excitement and the ever-present spirit of youth "Honors Are Even" scored home runs in every act, to use baseball parlance.

This play was once given a try-out in Washington two weeks and the greeting it received caused it to run for twenty-eight weeks, fifteen of which were at the Selwyn in Boston. William Courtleigh and Lolo Fisher appeared in the original roles.

Adelyn Bushnell and Walter Gilbert took over the leading roles and they proved themselves fully equal to the occasion. Miss Bushnell as the girl who flirted fast and furious with almost every man she met was perfectly cured of this pastime when Walter Gilbert set out to make love to her.

For an evening of genuine pleasure, watching a comedy that is sound and sensible and true to life, one only has to invest in a ticket for the St. James and let the Boston Stock Company do the rest.

SUMMER SHOW WILL MOVE INTO CASINO

Jimmie Cooper, Himself, and His Beauty Revue, the biggest attraction ever attempted by any burlesque producer, will come with a company of seventy entertainers to Waldron's Casino next Monday for an indefinite run. Vaudeville and moving pictures will complete the three-in-one continuous program.

This production is a double show, the first part being the Cooper Revue, presented by Mr. Cooper and other white members of the company. The second part will be "Running Wild," a sensational colored revue, booked as an added attraction. A grand finale will bring out all members of the company on the stage.

BREEZY FARCE WINS AT THE SOMERVILLE

A treat was served to the patrons of the Somerville Theatre yesterday when Avery Hopwood's lively farce, "The Demi-Virgin," was presented. Seldom have the Somerville players been given a better means for the display of their talents. The play is designed to scare away the blues and much of the fun is liberally spiced with breezy situations that require delicate handling. Ann Hamilton and Harry Bond appeared in the principal roles.

BIG PROGRAM FOR ACTORS' BENEFIT

The annual Actors' Fund Benefit will be given at the Colonial Theatre next Friday afternoon. Daniel Frohman, president of the fund, has planned a program that promises to be one of the best ever given for this cause, and every theatre in Boston will be represented by stars and leading entertainers. Several new and original one-act plays will be given. The spectacular numbers to be given through the cooperation of a number of local young women as entitled "Resorts of the World." This will be a fashion review exhibiting advanced styles in women's wear.

Among those who positively will appear are Al Jolson, Ernest Truex, June Walker, Oskee and De Lour, Grace Perkins, Sam Howard, Herb Fitzgibbon, Julio Brown, Helen Spring, Nellie Fillmore, Mitzi, Julian Eltinge, Percy Pollock, Oscar Pincus, Lillian Norwood, Louise Prussing, Thomas M. Larnie, Albert Howson, Margaret Wood, Eunice Hunt, Helen Hayes, Alexandra Carlisle, Boyd Marshall, Jason Robards, Sidney Greenstreet, Hilda Vaughn, Frances Brandt, Nova Dempsey, Mary Halliday, W. Edward Boyle and the Copley-Plaza Orchestra.

WILBUR ATTACHES TO HAVE TESTIMONIAL

The opening performance of the new musical comedy, "Sun Showers," at the Wilbur next Monday evening, will be staged through the courtesy of Messrs. Shubert and Jules Hurtig, as a benefit to the Wilbur staff. Frank M. Hoyt, Arthur Manley and Thomas J. Roche.

JUANITA HANSEN AT THE BOWDOIN

Juanita Hansen, the moving picture star who won her struggle against the drug evil, is appearing in person all this week at the Bowdoin Square Theatre, and tells the story of her career. She is a girl of charming personality and with a voice delivery that is pleasing. Her story of the horrors and tortures of those who use dope was listened to admiringly and at the close of her act she was given a big ovation. On Friday morning Miss Hansen will give a special talk to ladies only.

The picture features this week are Tom Mix in the thriller, "Three Jumps Ahead," and Mary Carr in "Silver Wings," a drama of American home life. Buster Keaton delights in his new comedy, "The Balloonatic," and Pearl White pleased in "Plunder."

SYMPHONY ENDS ITS MONDAY NIGHT SERIES

By ZOE FABER

In a gown of apricot lace with metallic touches, Florence MacBeth, soprano, made as charming a picture as has graced the stage of Symphony Hall for some time when she appeared last night as soloist for the closing concert of the Monday evening series.

Her voice is a joy in the purity of its tones and the flexibility and ease which shows at every turn. There is every mark of the coloratura, yet a regard for tone color and a discriminating nicety of phrase that is not always present in a singer of this type.

The Saint-Saens concert for trumpet, piano and strings claimed a large share of the interest of the evening. It is seldom played. As the piano was Jesus Sanroma, the trumpet solo work was by Georges Mager.

The symphony was the Mendelssohn in "A minor (Scotch) and it was played without pause to the discontent of many a late comer.

The Berlioz Hungarian march, "Hatoczy," concluded in a brilliant finish a program of unusual interest.

TWO FEATURE FILMS SHOWN AT THE STATE

Two of the finest pictures seen on one bill in many weeks were shown at Loew's State Theatre yesterday. The first of these unusual features was "You Can't Fool Your Wife," a picture of vital interest to every American home. The direction is especially well done and the settings are most elaborate and luxurious. Several prominent players are featured, including Leatrice Joy, Nita Naldi, Lewis Stone and Pauline Caron. The second feature revealed Alice Brady, in "The Leopardess." The background and scenic effects are picturesque. The acting of Miss Brady in this picture is superb and the support accorded her by the rest of the cast is exceedingly well balanced.

A late comedy and news pictorial also was shown.

AFRICAN HUNT FILMS AT TREMONT TEMPLE

"Hunting Big Game in Africa With Gun and Camera," started on its second week at Tremont Temple yesterday with the usual crowded attendance which is being attracted to this remarkable film. Tense, thrilling moments, punctuated with genuine, mirth-provoking scenes, and great lessons from nature taught in a way as to make everybody a willing pupil, are the high points of the picture. The pictures show wild and strange animals at their feeding and picture-taking party. It shows the natives taking to the trees for safety with Sidney Strong, coolly grinding away at the camera.

Widow Accepts $7,000 in Settlement of $20,000 Suit

Lowell, April 24.—A compromise settlement of $7,000 was accepted by Mrs. Ann Windsor of England, widow of John Windsor of Lowell, in her $20,000 alienation of affections' suit against Mrs. Christina M. Whittier of Lowell, also a widow.

Judge Sisk excused the jury until today. The settlement decision was reached following two conferences of counsel. Mrs. Windsor was to have testified today.

1 HOUSE OF DAVID BRIDE IS ONLY 14

St. Joseph, Mich., April 24 (By Associated Press).—With positive evidence before it that one of last week's girl brides of the House of David is under legal marriage age and that a number of girls of her years had been mistreated when the marriage licenses were obtained, the Grand Jury investigating the Israelite cult today prepared to delve deeper into the life in "King" Benjamin Purnell's colony.

Only two of twenty-eight brides and bridegrooms have been heard, but their testimony, State officials say, uncovered leads well worth while following up.

Of outstanding importance was the testimony of Countess Woodruff, Nee Drake, who told Judge Harry Dingeman, the one man grand jury, and Andrew Dougherty, attorney-general, she would not be sixteen until next June. School records of the county, however, say she will be only fourteen then. Her application for a marriage license gives her age at seventeen.

"GIGGLES" SCORES AT GAYETY THEATRE

"Giggles," the musical organization presenting the gay burlesque "Joytime," with Harry Evanson, Tim McCauley and Miss Valeska as leading principals, and with Kitty Kincaid Marigold's Jazz Band as a special feature, kept two audiences rolling merrily along the laughter highway at the Gayety Theatre yesterday. "Joytime" is a blend of jazz music, song and dance, vaudeville specialties, clever comedy, specialty chorus ensembles and scenic novelties.

Kincaid Marigold's Jazz Band, made up of five girls, scored well in their first appearance. The girl musicians tore off jazz "blues" and their lively compositions with earsplitting effect and were encored again and again.

The chorus of twenty-two blondes, brunettes and titians, sang, danced and executed march evolutions with the snap and gusto that comes only from natural aptitude cultivated by skilful training.

DUTCH ACQUIRE MONOPOLY OF RUSSIAN OIL

London, April 24.—As a result of the purchase of 200,000 tons of oil from the Russian Soviet government, the Royal Dutch shell group has acquired a monopoly in the exportation of Russian oil for more than a year, according to a statement given to the London newspapers by a French source.

The informant adds that the group invited its colleagues in the international consortium to participate in the deal but that they refused.

PRISON GUARD'S BLOW KILLS BOY

Lansing, Mich., April 24.—Frank Patterson of Orlando, Fla., an inmate of Ionia Reformatory here, died from a blow received at the hands of a prison guard, according to an undertaker who examined the body, and Charles Shean, warden of the institution. According to Shean, Patterson led an attack on the guard, who struck Patterson down with a club and prevented a jail delivery. Shean believes the prison guard justified in his action.

HOW TO PUT A "KICK" IN IT

—A tip for "wets" and "drys!"

We are all liable to feel "out of sorts" at times—need something with a "kick" in it to clear the brain, brighten the eye, put "pep" in the system.

Best way to do this is to take—with, or without, a "chaser"—that harmless yet thoroughly efficient family medicine, Beecham's Pills.

"Two for adults and one for children" is the phrase of health that has meant good digestion and a clear system to countless healthy happy people the world over for the past 80 years.

HARDING WILL TURN ON HIS CRITICS

By International News Service.

New York, April 24.—President Harding will make a vigorous reply today to those critics within and without the Republican party who have severely criticised his court proposal.

Primed for a "fighting speech," Mrs. Harding arrived in New York today to make the first formal address he has undertaken in months.

Senator Lodge

It was to be delivered to a gathering of newspaper publishers at the Waldorf. The President proposed to take up the cudgels in defence of his world court proposal, draw a distinct line of debarkation between the court and League of Nations, under whose auspices it was formed and pledge himself to American adhesion.

The speech will constitute his reply to all criticism and turmoil that have been prevalent in the Republican party in recent weeks. The President's friends asserted it would be a "complete answer" to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and the opposition.

Lodge will lead the fight of Republican Senators against the court. He outlined the preliminaries of the fight in conference with Senators Watson, Borah, Brandegee and others who met in his office in the Capitol.

SPLIT THREATENED.

In these conferences it was decided that an effort would be made, first of all, to endeavor to persuade the President not to go "too far" in announcing his support of the court proposal and so make impossible the efforts of Lodge, Watson and others to avert the threatening split in the Republican ranks.

Little hope was entertained, however, of inducing the President to "soft pedal" the court issue, and plans were formed to take the question up with the President on his return from New York tomorrow. When Lodge and Watson will again tell the President that the party breach will be widened if the administration forces the court proposal in the next Congress or in the campaign.

GIRL, SCOLDED, ROBS MOTHER, VANISHES

Alice Lemosh, sixteen years old, has disappeared from her home at No. 175 Bowen street, South Boston, taking with her $19, all of the family funds. She left a note which read:

"I cannot stand being scolded by my father any more. I am going to Detroit to find work. Don't worry about me. I will return the money I took from mother's pocketbook as soon as I earn enough. Tell my teacher that I have gone on a vacation."

The girl's parents declare they chided her for keeping late hours. They believe she has eloped with an admirer. Her father is an invalid and the mother is obliged to work daily. They have a younger son who attends school.

New York—Restriction of immigration under the quota system which he said is "producing good results" will be continued by Congress in the opinion of Chairman Johnson of the House Committee of Immigration and Naturalization.

-PE-RU-NA-

Right Medicine for Catarrh of the Stomach

It took Mr. John Wick of Menominee Falls, Wisconsin, ten years to discover this fact but he has been a well man since. He writes "I have been a user of Pe-ru-na for nearly twenty years. For about ten years I had catarrh of the stomach. Nothing did me any good. I grew worse until a friend advised me to try Pe-ru-na. I knew I had found the right medicine after using the first bottle. My weight was down to 135 pounds. I now weigh 165. I feel entirely cured and have had little use for medicine the last ten years."

Pe-ru-na has proved to be a wonderfully good medicine to keep in the house for everyday ills such as coughs, colds, catarrh, stomach and bowel disorders and other catarrhal conditions.

FRIENDS EXPECT BARR RELEASE TOMORROW

That James Barr, lifer in State prison, will be given his freedom tomorrow when the Governor's Council meets is the belief of thousands of Barr's friends who have been working for his release for four years.

Barr, who was given a life sentence twenty-three years ago for an assault upon a forty-four-year-old spinster, has asked that his sentence be commuted to thirty years. This is the question to be decided by the Governor and his council tomorrow. If this is granted, Barr will be eligible for parole at once and his freedom will be but a matter of the few days necessary to unwind necessary red tape.

Barr is opposed by his divorced wife and his family of four children. Joined with them in opposition to freeing Barr are George H. Godbeer, editor and publisher of the Fitchburg Sentinel; Representative Henry Wheelock, brother-in-law of Godbeer, and Chief of Police Thomas Godley of Fitchburg.

Against the small army there are 50,000 members of Scottish organizations throughout the State. Barr is the only Scot in the State prison. The Scots want their slate wiped clean, as well as mercy for the aged prisoner. They have prepared a home for Barr in Boston and have secured a position for him. He will be given a short vacation when released and will then settle down to his job in a Boston department store.

The Governor's Council was expected to act on the petition of Barr last week, but postponed action until tomorrow.

An Unfailing Way to Banish Hairs Use Delatone

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have disappeared. No pain or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

GOVERNOR WOULD FIRE CAMP SHERIFF

Tallahassee, Fla., April 24.—The Florida Senate referred Governor Hardee's recommendation that Sheriff J. H. Jones of Leon County be removed from office to a committee, which will investigate accusations against the sheriff and report to the senate.

This action grew out of the investigation into the death of Martin Tabert, a North Dakota youth, who is alleged to have been whipped to death in a convict camp.

Gov. Hardee

The Governor makes no reference to County Judge Willis or the sheriff's deputies, all of whom with the sheriff have been accused by witnesses before the Joint legislative investigating committee of public and private drunkenness, the drinking of liquor seized in bootleg raids, for grabbing and other irregularities.

JOHNSON HAS SLIGHT EDGE ON FULTON IN SLOW RING BATTLE

WILLARD BOUT IS NEXT TEST FOR YOUNGSTER

By DAMON RUNYON

Jersey City, N. J., April 24.—The "yellow dog" turned out to be something on a curly wolf.

At the tag end of his pugilistic career, Fred Fulton, the pale plasterer, turned an made an astonishingly gallant stand against young Floyd Johnson of Iowa.

At the end of twelve rounds Johnson was well in front, but a very tired youth, as the old hughime stock of pugilism struggled on and on.

It was the unanimous opinion of the five boxing writers of New York morning papers, to whom the decision was left, that Johnson won.

CORBETT ALSO SAID SO.

To this we might add the opinion of James J. Corbett, one-time heavyweight champion of the world.

Johnson rode his fight in the early rounds and carried the battle to Fulton at every bell. He fought to hold his place on the Milk Fund show of May 12 against Jess Willard. He fought for a purse of $25,000 and he fought desperately.

He had old Fred very unsteady several times, and on the floor once in the first round, but Fred brought all his experience into play along with gameness that surprised many who have been led to believe that Fred is a sort of a mate Kellerman, gifted with rare ability as a "tanker."

His face was bloody and his long arms and long legs were very weary from warding off the plunging attack of the Iowan.

Then, toward the finish, Johnson tired, and Fred nailed him with long uppercuts that seemed to increase Floyd's weariness.

At the final bell, they were both very, very tired and Fred had given such an exhibition of gameness under a long and constant mauling that the crowd gave him a loud cheer.

Charley Cook, manager of Johnson, said his reason for making the match with Fulton, that caused a fine row among three boxing commissions, was that he wanted to give Johnson experience for Wilfard in a real fight. He got it, plenty of it.

The bout, from the spectators' standpoint, was about as exciting as could be desired.

Johnson's youth, stamina and bulldog courage carried him over this one because Fulton had weight and experience on him. At no time did the "Old Plasterer" show a disposition to "chuck it," and he was in several very tough spots where his head must have been swimming.

Jack Conway Picks Norfolk to Win Over McCreary

Kid Norfolk and Battling McCreary will furnish as much action as a Babe Ruth home run, according to Jack Conway.

W		L
55	as a Babe Ruth home run, according to Jack Conway.	8

"And Norfolk should win," says the Boston American's expert who recently picked thirty-four winners in a row. "But it will be a torrid battle. McCreary has breezed out front in his last two local starts and feels he has enough class to grab Norfolk's title.

"It looms forth as the best bout between b'g fellows staged by a local club in several months."

CAN CALZA TOSS ZBYSZKO OUT OF RING?

Would you like to see George Calza, Italian wrestling champion, defeated?

If so, Wladeck Zbyszko, great Polish wrestler, says he will accommodate you when he meets the Great Unbeaten in a bout at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, under the direction of the Old Howard management.

George Calza.

Zbyszko likes Calza much like the family tabby does the eighbor's dog. For more than a year the Pole has been trying to get a bout with Calza. Each wrestler claims that the other tried to avoid the issue.

Boston and New England fans who have seen Zbyszko in many important bouts do not believe he ran out of a match with Calza. They seem to think that the Italian champion was the one who was not over-eager to enter the ring.

Anyhow, Matchmaker Paul Bowser of the Old Howard management finally got Calza and Zybszko together. Articles of agreement were signed, sealed and delivered, as it were.

Zybszko and Calza should furnish a gruelling match. The Pole has agreed to toss Calza three times in an hour of actual wrestling time.

As the fifty mare has not been barred, Calza is liable to toss Zybszko out into the audience.

Tommy Reord, New England welterweight champion, will oppose Eddie Shaboo of the navy in the semi-final. Another tussle will bring together Lawson Pinkham of Attleboro and Frank Hackenschmidt, the modern Hercules.

Johnson Lucky to Win Declares Corbett

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

Jersey City, N. J., April 24.—Floyd Johnson outpointed Fred Fulton, but he was a mighty tired and slightly groggy warrior at the end.

Johnson's furious rushes, his aggressiveness and the fact that Fulton laid his extra twenty pounds all over the Iowa fighter, began to tell in the tenth and eleventh rounds.

In the uproar it looked like a chain-lightning knockout victory for Johnson. He raced into Fulton with the opening bell, rushed Fred around the ring and finally succeeded in crashing a right-hander to Fulton's chin. Fred went down on all fours but jumped up quickly and mixed it merrily with Johnson at the bell.

After that it was a fast, furious melee, with each man [illegible] for a knockout. Each round was a slugging bee, during which both men let loose with all they had. But outside of bloodied noses, nothing serious happened, until the twelfth.

Johnson came out for the final looking somewhat worn and tired. He made a desperate rush in the hope of finishing Fulton, but Fred slipped over his dynamite left and staggered Johnson. Then Fulton shot at Johnson's chin with his right, connected, and wobbled Johnson a bit more.

By a rare display of gameness and generability Johnson succeeded in pulling himself clear of immediate danger. Fulton continued to try for a knockout, but he, like Johnson, became arm and leg-weary and his blows lacked steam at the end.

The superior height, weight and reach of Fulton was a distinct asset to him, and so was his experience. But Johnson had the edge in speed and aggressiveness.

The bout with Fulton should serve as a great "tuneup" for Johnson in his future battles.

McTIGUE FIGHTS CARPENTIER JULY 14

New York, April 24.—Mike McTigue and Georges Carpentier will fight for the world's light-heavyweight title July 14 at the Yankee Stadium, or at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City.

This announcement was made by Tex Rickard after he had completed negotiations with Francis Desmond, manager of Georges.

Several days ago Joe Jacobs, manager of McTigue, now in Ireland, signed with Rickard.

It is understood that Carpentier will receive a $75,000 guarantee and 25 per cent. of the gate receipts, and that McTigue's guarantee will be in excess of this amount and 25 per cent. of the gate.

It will be Georges' second trip and third fight in this country. He knocked out Battling Levinsky in four rounds at the Jersey City baseball park in October, 1920, to win the world's light-heavyweight crown, and was knocked out by Jack Dempsey in four rounds, July 2, 1921, in a battle for the world's heavyweight championship.

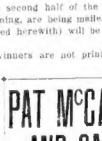
PAT McCARTHY AND SMITH BATTLE



Pat McCarthy.

Pat McCarthy, Roxbury light-heavyweight, will stake his claim to the title he now held by Mike McTigue when he battles Jeff Smith of Bayonne, N. J., in a twelve-round bout at Lewiston, Me., tomorrow night. McCarthy, who won the heavyweight tournament staged by Jimmy Johnston in New York last Winter, has been training for six weeks and will be in the best condition of his career when he opposes Smith.

Pat has defeated Bob Roper twice, while he has also wins to his credit over Battling McCreary, George Robinson, Phil Reed and other fast steppers. As a result, he does not believe he will have anything to fear from Smith.

In his training, McCarthy has displayed a great deal of aggressiveness. He says it is his plan to force the issue and in this way try for a knockout.

Smith is a big card in Maine. He has never lost a bout in the Pine Tree State. Therefore, if McCarthy can win in decisive style, he will be in line to get some attractive bookings.

The contest has aroused a great deal of interest in Lewiston and is sure to be witnessed by a capacity crowd.

If McCarthy wins over Smith, he will probably be signed to mingle with Harry Greb in Boston.

SOMERVILLE HAS STAR PITCHER IN HOGAN

By FRED C. LANE.

Coach "Dutch" Ayer of Somerville High has uncovered his second pitching sensation in two years in Francis Hogan, star of the Junior High School League last season.

Francis Hogan

With this new hurler, and with the pitching prowess of Danny McFayden and the all-round playing of the team taken into consideration, the experts pick the red and blue color bearers as the 1923 champions of the Suburban League.

There is little doubt but that the material is at hand from which a championship organization can be built, but studies will play an important part.

At the present time four of the best players on the nine are on the ragged edge. None of these lads is a mediocre player, but all are of high standing in athletics.

The prospects for Somerville to win the crown lies with these youngsters who have been careless in the class room. Unless all four get down to work and devote time to study the grand chance to put Somerville High back on the athletic map will be lost.

Cases of this kind are common to scholastic circles. Failure to keep on even terms with the books has caused more than one team to lose a championship.

* * *

Huntington School was unfortunate in the drawing for position in the medley race, one of the many carded for schoolboys in the Penn Relay Carnival on Friday and Saturday at Philadelphia. The Red and Black school will start from 17th position of 18 entries.

Medford and Exeter were more fortunate. Coach Mansfield's boys drew the pole, while Exeter has a place in the front rank. The Back Bay school has a sweet quartet in this race and would come near setting up a record were they out front.

* * *

Webber Knox of Medford High broke into the limelight as a pitching sensation in a recent game with Malden. The lad allowed the hard-hitting Malden team only three hits, one of which was a scratch, struck out five batters, issued no passes, yet lost on three errors by his teammates.

* * *

Elmer Mayo of Malden High promises to amount to something as a pitcher in the Suburban League. Mayo has speed, good control and a fast-breaking curve. Coach Jack McDonald will win a lot of games this season with this lad serving them.

* * *

"Shy" Donahue is doing the brunt of the receiving for Malden, and at this stage looks like the All-Scholastic catcher.

* * *

Lynn English High plays Chelsea today at Carter playground, Chelsea. Coach Sexton will start Big Art Healy, last season's pitching ace in the North Shore and Industrial League.

* * *

Commerce and West Roxbury break into the baseball picture today at the Walpole Street Grounds. Barney Nolan, mainstay of the Commerce team last year, will be in uniform in a few days and add strength to the pitching department of the Buck Bay school.

ABE FRIEDMAN HAS MARGIN OVER GRAY

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 24. — At the Brooklyn Sporting Club Abe Friedman, the New England bantamweight champion, won a well earned decision over Johnny Gray in a fast twelve-round bout. Friedman led in nine of the twelve rounds, and his all around work was a revelation to the fans. The New England bantamweight champion was master throughout and his work classed him with the leading bantamweights of the country and a real contender for Joe Lynch's crown.

McMANUS AND HART ON AT C. A. C.

Terry McManus of the South End, recently crowned national amateur 135-pound champion, will meet Tommy Hart of the West End in his debut as a pro at the opening of the C. A. C. in mercial Club, Bowdoin square, on Friday night.

Jimmy Manning

The bout was clinched after a number of boys had turned a deaf ear to the pleas of Mc Manus. F w boys are anxious to stand up and swap wallops with the former simon pure champion.

Five eight-round bouts will be on the card, and it is expected that the fans will see plenty of action.

Mickey Landers, another amateur star who won the New England and national junior 135-pound titles, will also turn pro Friday night when he clashes with Buff Ivers. It is expected that Landers will be forced to show all his stuff to win.

A battle which will determine the market championship will interest duce two heavyweights, Beef Edwards and Jack "Porky" Keating for the title of the champion ship, and hundreds of market workers will turn out to see the fireworks.

Tommy Marks of the North End will return to the ring to meet Mike O'Dowd of Roxbury. O'Dowd is another former amateur star who has deserted the ranks of the simon pures to join the coin chasers.

The bout between Jimmy Manning of South Boston and Doddy O'Neil of Nashua, N. H., is expected to prove sensational. These two boys recently met and Manning scored out a close decision. The Nashua lad is out to turn the tables Friday night.

Reservations for the opening tournament at the old Home of Action can now be secured at Room 8, No. 68 School street.

Dual Track Meet May 2

Arlington High school track team will hold a dual track and field meet with Somerville on the Spy Pond athletic field, Arlington, on May 2.

HEAVYWEIGHTS READY FOR BATTLE

Spades will be trumps at the Armory A. A. show at the Grand Opera House tonight.

Kid Norfolk and Battling McCreary each says he will perform in the role of the Ace of Spades.

The world's colored light-heavyweight championship will be the stake. The Ace of Spades will leave the ring with the title.

Norfolk is the champion. He has met all challengers and has come through the baptism of fire with victory.

Lee Anderson was one of the leaders in the assault against Norfolk. He has toiled under two defeats handed out by the champion in local rings.

McCreary has battered his way up the heights and today stands at the crest of his fighting form. If fistiana's him kindly tonight he says he will draw the Ace of Spades.

Bat Says Norfolk Must Be Content with Deuce.

Bat says Norfolk will have to be content with the deuce. McCreary adds he will not be satisfied with the Ace of Spades alone. He will also try to draw the King, Queen and Jack. In which event he will sweep to victory.

There is great interest in the bout. This is natural. Norfolk and McCreary have been consistent winners. They have given satisfactorily. There is rivalry between them. They will fight. Which is all that one can ask of any candidate for ring fame.

* * *

Norfolk won his last two Boston starts by upsetting Lee Anderson. He then journeyed to Maine where he knocked out Wolf Larsen with a single punch.

McCreary, too, has been winning. Jack Taylor of New York, a protege of Tom O'Rourke's, was crushed before the McCreary drive. George Robinson followed him.

* * *

McCreary, a youngster in the boxing game, has bright possibilities. As a kid fighter he gave away forty pounds to Harry Wills and gave the latter a tough argument. But does not believe he has anything to fear from the 190-pounder. That's why he figures he will win over Norfolk tonight.

Frankie Ryan and Foley in the Semi-Final

Frankie Ryan of Everett, who has been whining steadily, will have Harry Foley, North End southpaw as an opponent in the semi-final of two rounds. This should be a fireball.

Bobby Robideau of New Bedford and Kid Philpott of Newton will box eight rounds as will Al Lewis of the South End and Jimmy Smith of Brockton.

Padgett Training at Kelly & Hayes' Gym

Cowboy Padgett, Kansas city welterweight, is training at Kelly and Hayes gym for his ten-round bout with Eddie Shade, New England welterweight champion, which will be staged at the Boston Arena next Monday night.

Padgett invites the fans to drop in and see him work. He says they will then realize why he believes he will conquer Shade.

The Westerner is an aggressive fighter who directs his attack to the body. He thinks that this is why Dave Shade saw fit to drop out of their bout billed for the Arena, as a chinning he was obliged to be operated upon. Padgett battled ten rounds to a draw with Dave Shade at Galveston, Texas. In that bout, he did execution on Shade's body. The cowboy seems to think that this is the best way to beat the Californian.

Boxers Should Finish Their Training in Boston

Ring men, billed to show at local clubs, should be compelled to come here three or four days before a match and finish their training in this city. This would give the fans a chance to size up the newcomers and would also be a body blow to the Setup League When a boxer like Padgett shows a willingness to train in public, it is a 100 to 1 shot that he possesses class as a fighter. Hub divers like Ray Thompson prefer to drift into town at the last minute and grab the first rattler out so as to get out of the way of the angry mob.

BRAVES ANXIOUS TO GET ANOTHER CRACK AT THE QUAKERS

TRIBE'S HUSTLING MAKES IT POPULAR WITH FANS

By NICK PLATLEY.

Fred Mitchell and the Braves were loudly paging a return of April Summer as they invaded their large ball park this morning. They hate to lose a chance to take a shot at the Phillies, who aren't a club at all yet, and who look like very soft pickings for the time being.

Showers and cold yesterday gave the athletes an enforced rest, and the Mitchmen have rested so much that idle time irks them. Too much vacation knocked them cuckoo before the Giant series, and they dropped four games while discovering what it was all about.

They came suddenly to life in the last New York game and sustained their pepper and kick in greeting Art Fletcher's outfit Saturday. The boys feel that they have hit their real gait now and don't want to ease off before getting somewhere up in the race.

Boston fans aren't anxious for off days either. They welcomed them a year ago, believe it, saved an extra defeat, but times are different. The gang has taken to the new Braves' carnation, and is convinced that the club is going to smash a lot of clubs in the National League this season.

It's Easy Enough to Discover New Attitude

It's easy enough to discover the new attitude, just by listening on the cars, at the park, or anywhere that the boys gather. Time was when a Braves' team in the rear was booed and kidded. All last week the crowd was cheering, cheering enthusiastically, even in the face of certain licking.

The judicious use of the pruning knife during the Winter, which resulted in the departure of a lot of athletes connected with Brave disaster, gave the populace something to talk about. The impressive fashion in which the new kids made good from the very blowoff, kindled the old excitement. And now the town is all ready to get steamed up again.

Play the Phils Again Twice and Also Tomorrow

After the Phils come on the eastern trails, and then comes home to May for a long stand against the western clubs. That stretch will break a lot of attendance records in these parts if the team keeps going, and the signs all point to that result. The youngsters have lost their raivesness and the splendid fashion in which the lot of them started, gives them an impetus that all the misfortune of a year couldn't ruin.

Three of the kid pitchers have gone the nine-inning route with all flags flying and everything, and the veterans who had sore arms are about ready to hop onto the peak. Even Manager Mitchell is optimistic, and that's quite a stunt when you stop to consider that his team lost its four first games.

Should Win a Lot From Now on, Says Mitch

"We should win a lot from now out," declares Mitch. "I was afraid to send in some of the youngsters at the start, but had to, and they surely made good. No regulars could have done better than the new players. They were in there from the drop of the hat, and they got the rest of the club hustling.

"There are several players, of course names would be out of place, who have been showing more baseball than they ever did before. It was just the example that started them off. Now they're as anxious to hustle as anybody. The team thinks it can win. When you get a ball club fighting and confident, you can't stop winning a bunch of ball games.

"The Giant series didn't discourage the team. Just made it mad. And from the looks of things now, that was a good thing."

MATTY WAS STAR ON GRIDIRON

Not many persons who followed "Big Six" now president of the Boston Braves, through his brilliant career, as one of the baseball world's greatest hurlers, probably realize that the send once quoted above told the story of his first achievement on fame of later the athletic field that brought his name prominently before the public.

Christy Mathewson

For despite the diamond fame of later years it was known best while in college.

WILSON CALLS OFF BOUT; ANKLE HURT

Chicago, April 24.—The bout between Johnny Wilson, world's middleweight champion, and Italian Joe Gans was cancelled after Wilson had sprained his right ankle in doing road work. Physicians refused to allow him to box.

Little Jocko Conlon the Big Noise at the Wigwam

Jocko Conlon, second base for the Tribe, looks like the real goods. The Woburn lad, who broke into the big show from college, is one of the most popular players ever on a Boston club roster.

Braves Get a Phenom in Harvard Captain

Stepping into the big leagues and making good there is one of the toughest athletic tasks in this age of sport and competition. Not one in a hundred ever does make the grade, and that one usually has to grill himself and get ready by years in minor leagues, where salaries are small and life not at all what it might be.

You could almost count the real big leaguers who have made good without the gruelling experiences of the bush circuits on the fingers of a couple of your hands. Even heroes like Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker and Babe Ruth were chased back to the lots before they hopped into a major league game.

Which makes the case of Jocko Conlon of the Braves extremely unusual and interesting. A year ago this time young Arthur from Woburn was worrying about his Harvard baseball team and the Yale series.

Now He Is a Regular in the Big Show

Now he is a regular second baseman in the big show, and if his initial efforts mean anything he's going to stick around quite a while. The youngster took to the big game like a duck to water. He looked like a large leaguer as soon as he trotted onto the training field at St. Petersburg. He has kept looking more and more that way as the Spring days wore along and now he's fans at Braves Field yell every time he makes a move.

Young Arthur is a midget, a comical, chunky youth who would be turned down on general principles by most baseball scouts. But all he needed was a chance. He has flocks of personality and real natural dash and ability. The combination is just as good as all the experience in the world.

What Spoke Said After Seeing Him at the Bat

Tris Speaker, after watching Jocko bat for the first time, early in the spring remarked:

"That kid is going to bother all the pitchers he ever faces. He never will hit a bad one, and you can't drive him away from the plate. He'll see a lot of new stuff when the pitchers get good, but by that time he'll know how to hit it."

That first bore out what Manager Mitchell and all the other baseball veterans thought. Your veteran loves a hitter. His batting reels elected Jocko to a regular job before his fielding was considered at all.

Shifted to Second Base Because of Poor Arm

The Harvard star hasn't the best arm in the world. That's why he was shifted to second base, as the AMERICAN predicted he would be. He can do plenty of throwing for that position, and he will pick up any hit ball that he can reach. He wears a grin a mile wide all the time, even when he's diving into the gleaming spikes of some base stealer

VICTORY GIVES RED SOX NEW LEASE OF LIFE

Philadelphia, April 24.—Having at last [illegible] columns by trouncing the Athletics by a score of 9 to 6, the Boston Red Sox were out to make it two straight here today. All the swatting ability of the Bostonians came to the surface yesterday, "Slugging George" Burns leading the onslaught with three doubles in five times at bat.

Quick thinking by Chick Fewster saved a possible Philadelphia run in the opening frame. "Wid" Matthews, Connie Mack's new centrefielder, started things off with a single that was slated for a sure triple.

When the ball was relayed, Fewster stepped on the keystone sack and declared Matthews had overstepped second. The umpires upheld his contention, and Matthews was declared out.

They Treated the Repentant Kinney Just as Harshly

Philadelphia fans expected to see a gang of cellar misfits in the Bostonians but were unpleasantly surprised at the snappy work afield and the general all-round work of the visitors.

Howard Ehmke, secured by Chance in a trade with Detroit last Spring, toiled for the Red Sox and he spun his shoots exceedingly well excepting in the ninth when there was a general let-up and overconfidence permitted the Macks to tally four times.

But for Eight Innings He Toyed With Mackmen

But for eight innings Ehmke rather toyed with the latest edition of Mackmen and though he was hit sporadically was mighty strong in the pinches. He had better control than when he wore Detroit spangles, struck out four, yielded three bases on balls and hit Frank Welch, Mackman rightfielder twice.

"Chick" Fewster made a vivid impression by his snappy play at short. It was due to Fewster's quick thinking the A's didn't score more in the first.

Red Sox Started to Score in the Third

The Sox started to score in the third on singles by Mitchell and Harris, a double by Burns and two Mack errors. They accounted for two runs. Three more came in the sixth on singles by Harris and Ralchis, a double again by Burns and another error.

They picked up two in the seventh on Burns' third double and another single by Reichle, and added others in the eighth and ninth by more slugging.

AL SHUBERT BEATS LEONARD ON POINTS

Al Shubert of New Bedford won the decision over Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa., in the ten-round feature bout at the Casino A. C. at Lynn.

In the preliminary bouts, Paul De Salvo of Quincy, was awarded the decision over Spike Hennessey of Waltham at the end of eight rounds; Tommy O'Brien of the South End defeated Tom Rome of Stoneham in six rounds, and Young Ross of Lynn knocked out Harry Loring of Charlestown in three rounds.

PROVIDENCE TO PLAY EAGLES TOMORROW

Providence College, one of the recent members of the Eastern Catholic college circuit, will wind up its practice today for the game with Boston College at Alumni Field tomorrow afternoon. Providence College is only a few years old, but has made appreciable strides in athletics since its founding, and although it has yet much to attain before reaching the standing of the Big Four, usually puts out a football and baseball team capable of making a very creditable showing.

The Providence nine played Yale, and lost by a 4 to 3 score. Vermont licked the Blue by a score of 5 to 4. Although comparisons of relative strength based on scores do not always mean much in college baseball, the Providence nine has given evidence of its strength on the diamond.

In its recent game with Clark University of Worcester, an institution with a respectably strong team, Providence was victorious by a score of 18 to 1. At all events, Coach Henriksen is not taking tomorrow's visitors lightly, and will throw his full strength onto the field.

Caffrey, a Providence lad, will probably twirl against the Eagle. He is rated as a high class ball tosser, and one who is likely to keep the Boston batters guessing.

U. S. GOLFERS ARE INJURED ON STEAMER

London, April 24.—Four members of the American Amateur International Golf continent were slightly injured on the voyage from New York.

On the second day out Jesse Sweetser, member of the party, attained his majority and his friends decided to celebrate the occasion with a special dinner.

The weather was very rough and as soon as the party was seated a heavy sea struck the Mauretania, broadside, flinging table and diners across the room.

Harrison Johnston and Robert Gardiner sustained cut and bruised hands, President J. F. Byers of the United States Golf Association suffered an injury to his shoulder, while two of Guy M. Standifer's toes were dislocated.

LEW PALUSO BEATS FLETCHER IN NINE

Portland, Me., April 24.—The bout between Lew Paluso of Salt Lake City and Eddie Fletcher of New Jersey was stopped in the third round of the last six of a scheduled double six at the Eastern A. C., when a cut over Fletcher's eye opened.

Referee Matty Quinn gave Paluso the decision. Fletcher took a good beating in game fashion.

Philadelphia Joe Stanley forced Porter McIntire of Bangor to quit in the second round. Utah Kid of Bangor and Jack Conley of Portland battled to a draw. Young Cole of Biddeford shaded Young Cole of Lewiston.

HARVARD ROWING COACH SHAKES UP CREW

Frank J. Muller of Philadelphia, the New Crimson crew coach, has dropped five members of last year's varsity crew to the substitute ranks. The men who rowed against Yale last June and went down to defeat before the Elis have rowed their last race for the Crimson varsity.

Only two of the seven veterans in college have been selected by Muller as suitable varsity sweepsters. They are Brown, the 160 pound stroke, and Henry, number seven.

Five veterans, Charlie Hubbard, Dan Holder, Bob Storey, Stan Bradford and Nat Webb have been sent down to the second, third and fourth boats. Even Coxswain Burnham has been relegated to the minors and his place has been taken by Sherwin Badger who is known better as amateur fancy skating champion of America.

The new crew, which will race Dick Glendon, Jr.'s, United States Naval Academy crew and Dr. Duncan Spaeth's Princetonians on Lake Carnegie a week from Saturday, has six men who weigh more than 190. Brown, stroke, and Sylvester Kelley of Reading, bow, weigh in the neighborhood of 160 each.

The other seats are Henry at seven, Captain Alexander Ladd at six, Henry Fuller at five, Charlie Cummings at four, George Johnson at three and Harry Morgan at two.

Kelley and Johnson rowed on the Harvard freshmen eight a year ago and both took the measure of the Navy and the Tigers in a brilliant race on the Charles. They show excellent possibilities.

Kelley captained the crew at Exeter Academy two years ago. Johnson is a Chicago lad.

The second eight contains most of the members of last year's varsity aggregation. The men on it are Captain Ed Matthews, stroke, Dan Holders, seven; Francis Fiske, six; Charlie Hubbard, five, Nat Webb, four; Hollister, three, Johnson, two, and Benjamin Franklin Rice-Bassett, last year's freshman captain, bow.

CHICK SUGGS WINS AGAINS MONTREAL

New Bedford, April 24. — Chick Suggs of Newport defeated Young Montreal of Providence in a one-sided ten-round bout. Suggs won every round until the tenth when he eased up.

Jimmy Kidde of Taunton was given a decision over Young Falvey of New Bedford at the end of a hurricane eight-round semi-final.

FIRE IN CHURCH AFTER THREATS

Witnesses Deny Pappas Evidence

This warning served only to increase Royce's interest in Lily Waite.

BEGIN THIS STORY NOW

Two days after Kerry Rowan, a noted motion picture director, had visited the offices of the District Attorney in Los Angeles Rowan is found shot to death in his home, with a bowl of poppies scattered on the floor beside him. Rowan has given much information whereby the drug evil in Hollywood might be attacked and had promised to risk death by testifying against those caught in raids, for the sake of a clean Hollywood and because of his sincere affection for a young film star. Then, swing back to Ireland years earlier—

Smuggling the Drugs

AGAIN the old man paused. The pipe was not drawing to suit him, and besides, he was in no hurry to bring the story to a close. If the master's son had not asked him to recount some more of his adventures in "furrin parts" he would have been obliged to potter around the stable in his daily pretense of doing a little work, but, the request having been made, he took the stand that it would have been disrespectful not to give his entire attention to the task thus imposed upon him. He held a bridle across his knee and a polishing rag in his hand, but that was merely in case the lad's father happened along. The real matter in hand was the telling of the story.

People in the neighborhood of Ballymacooly often wondered why Gavin Royce did not give the toe of his boot to old Cronin and send him packing. Servants on the dwindling Royce estate were few enough, they remarked, without having such a worthless old blowhard as that in charge of the stables. True, the stables were not what they had been, and it did not take much of a man to look after them nowadays, but Cronin never did any work at all that he could get out of and he was drunk with a regularity that ill became a man of his years. Furthermore, he was a jailbird, by no good influence for young Master Kenneth.

On Kenneth's Account

Yet it was largely on Kenneth's account that Gavin Royce kept the old man on from year to year, notwithstanding his acknowledged worthlessness. He knew what others did not —that Cronin idolized that boy and would have done anything up to murder to save him from harm. He knew that the old man had seen the world and its wonders, whereas most of those who spoke ill of him had never been beyond the boundaries of County Cork. He knew that despite the life he had led, old Cronin had reached the age at which he delighted in adorning all his tales with a moral, reflecting with wicked pride upon some of the things he had done, perhaps, but warning Kenneth solemnly never to do likewise.

As for Kenneth, the old reprobate frankly fascinated him. While he was still a child he had listened spellbound to Cronin's inexhaustible fund of tales about the "little folk," the leprechauns and elves, the pixies and sprites who inhabited the fields and the forests. Later he had been regaled with yarns of the queer animals and birds to be encountered in tropical climes, not to mention devil fish, sea serpents and other monsters of the deep. What did it matter if truth were handled a trifle carelessly at times in the telling of the story?

In the end he had put this wonder into words and the result had been the tale that old Phil was now recounting. He had kept it from the lad for many years because of the black ending to it and because it was one in which neither he nor any man could take the smallest pride, but by now he felt sure that nothing could take away from Kenneth's regard for him and, what was more, the tale carried a fine moral to it.

"Ye must know, Ken, me boy, that smuggling opium into the United States is no decent thing for a man to be doin', but we was a hard lot and it was easy money if we wasn't caught."

Story Is Resumed

The cutty was going satisfactorily now, and the story had been resumed.

"We had been studying all the way over how we was going to carry the stuff off the boat, but Paddy McGlynch was the only one who was any ways clever. Paddy had a leaky old accordian that he sometimes played on the forward deck in fine weather, for the young folks amongst the cabin passengers to dance to. He picked up many's the bit of silver that way when he wasn't on watch. 'I'll make her pay me more than me best record this trip,' says he, and he opens the end of her and fills her full of the sticky, funny smellin' packages. 'She won't go back in the ease, now,' he says, 'but I'll just carry her under me arm and take her ashore to be repaired,' he says.

"'She'll be needin' them same repairs before ye get back, says Duff Maguire. 'A load like that'll put her to sleep forever.' Duff was stuffin' his share inside of four pair of old shoes he'd borryed for the occasion.

"'Not bein' inventive by nature, I'd made up me mind to wrap mine up, flat-like, in a stoker's neckcloth and put it in the seat of me pants. 'Too bad ye ain't a blarted Turk, says Duff Maguire, and we laughed ourselves silly at the notion... Ye know, Ken, a Turk has cloth enough in his trousers

NEW FIGHT OPENED BY FEENEY

Plea for Rehearing Charges Testimony for State Was Admitted Lie

Sworn affidavits giving the lie to testimony against Paul Pappas, presented when he was tried and convicted for the murder of Mrs. Alice Arsenault, was presented by Attorney John P. Feeney in his petition for a new trial today.

Joseph Sifiakis a lodger in Mrs Arsenault's Columbus avenue lodging house, and one of the principal witnesses for the Commonwealth testified at the trial that on the morning of December 26, 1919 he went to the Arsenault kitchen for his breakfast

Mrs. Arsenault, he testified, was lying on a couch covered with bed clothing, apparently asleep. Pappas was preparing breakfast for himself and Sifiakis. The latter said he asked Pappas if Mrs Arsenault was ill, and that Pappas replied she was indisposed, following excessive drinking the night before

CONTRADICTS TESTIMONY.

According to affidavits signed by a married couple living in the Arsenault boarding house, Sifiakis admitted to them he had given false testimony during the trial and that instead of going to the Arsenault kitchen for breakfast, he had gone directly to a restaurant in the vicinity, and from there to work. He told them he was at work at 6 o'clock on the morning of December 26 1919, and that he did not see Pappas that day

The man and wife who made the statements in their affidavits they were informed to a police sergeant and that the officer promised to bring it to the attention of the district attorney.

Comparison of records shows that Sifiakis was at work at 6 o'clock on the morning of December 26, 1919.

GIVEN POLICE SERGEANT.

Persons from the office of the district attorney are investigating the charge made against the police sergeant.

Other evidence purporting to show that Mrs Arsenault was alive six weeks after she is supposed to have been murdered, was also presented by Attorney Feeney

"I am convinced Pappas has suffered a great injustice in being found guilty of murder on evidence that in my opinion is inadmissable said Attorney Feeney "I will show in my motion evidence that should never have been admitted during the Pappas trial."

Assistant District Attorney Henry Fieldone has offered to do what he can to assist Attorney Feeney in assuring justice to the condemned man.

Pappas was sentenced to die for the murder on December 26, 1919, of Mrs. Alice Arsenault, in whose boarding house he then lived. To-day's plea for a new trial is the third made in the prisoner's behalf On the eve of the execution of Pappas, an extraordinary session of the Governor's Council granted a reprieve to give time for the preparation and presentation of new evidence by the counsel for the defence.

The General, who made his accusation before the student body of Colby College at Waterville Me., is mistaken in his interpretation of Mrs. Mead's remarks, she declares

"I was called disloyal because I dared say that Germany was not solely responsible for the war. I admit that she was responsible in a way, but all the blame must not be put on her," Mrs. Mead told the Boston American today

"A little group of men in Austria German and Russia were immediately responsible, but the underlying causes of the war were of a most complex nature. FIRE AFTER THREAT TO CHURCH

Altar of St. Peter's, South Boston, Is Destroyed; Police Start Probe

Parishioners of St. Peter's Catholic Church of West Fifth street, South Boston, firmly believe that the fire which destroyed the altar and threatened to consume the entire edifice, was the long-deferred execution of a threat.

Threat of disaster to the church was received by the rector, Fr. Kenney Urbanitis during the height of the outbreak of fires in Catholic churches in Canada. When the fire started and the priests risked their lives in attempts to save the sacred vessels on the altar, it was recalled.

GIRL GIVES ALARM.

State police and fire department officials today began an investigation of the fire which was suspiciously sudden in its start Fr. Urbanitis, however, was inclined to believe that the fire was caused by crossed wires, in which opinion Fire Chief John O Taber concurred.

The fire was discovered by Miss Anna Novinsky while visiting in the rectory Her shouts aroused twelve worshippers in the basement who had hardly escaped when that portion of the church was filled with smoke. James M Murray, who lives next to the rectory, heard the shouts and sounded an alarm.

MANY PRAY IN STREET.

Hundreds viewed the fire from the street and many prayed for the safety of the church. So threatening to the adjoining tenement houses was it that Acting Fire Chief Richardson sounded a second alarm Chief Taber responded and fifteen minutes' fast work brought the blaze under control, but not before the altar, several statues and the altar end of the church had been destroyed A temporary altar will be built at once

Driven back from the altar by the intense heat, Fathers Urbanitis and Motzkus turned to the saving of vestments and other articles in the vestry Damage was estimated at about $5,000.

Guard Church After Bombing Threat

An extra police guard, plain clothes men and civilians are patrolling the streets surrounding St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Cambridge, today to ward off threatened attempts to bomb the church

On April 10 the Rev. John J Ryan, pastor of the church, received an anonymous letter from a religious fanatic, in which the destruction of the church by bombing was threatened today, April 24

The letter was put in the hands of the police and since April 10 extra patrolmen have been on duty guarding the church The threatened church is a new structure and was first used for public worship on Easter Sunday.

CODMAN, JR., ON TRIAL IN RUM PLOT

Real Estate Broker's Son Charged With Shipping Liquor as Potatoes

Savannah, Ga., April 24.—A Federal grand jury resumed a long and weary wrangle today as to whether it had been given sufficient evidence to convict William C. Codman, Jr., son of the Boston realtor, as a rum runner.

Codman, who was graduated from Harvard University in 1912 and abandoned the Back Bay of Boston to become a gentleman truck farmer three miles outside the city, is charged with conspiring with Samuel P. Brown in shipping whiskey from the Codman Farm marked billed and loaded into freight cars as potatoes

ADMITS SELLING POTATOES.

Codman on the stand admitted selling and packing seventy-five barrels of potatoes to Brown, who has disappeared. He also admitted selling Brown a piece of his farm for a railroad sidetrack. But he vigorously denied any knowledge of the liquor which was concealed in the barrels which were handled by his own employes.

The erstwhile Bostonian further disclosed that he had visited the scene of the loading on several occasions, but had observed nothing suspicious

ALL DAY TRIAL.

Trial of the case consumed the entire day and shortly before midnight the jury clamored for beds after deliberating for two hours without an agreement.

Codman, Sr., whose real estate office is located at No. 18 State street, Boston, recently sued his wife for divorce after being married for thirty-five years Another son John Codman, is associated with his father.

NEW HAVEN GRAB DENIED BY BEATTY

Montreal, April 24.—President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway in a statement today denied that his system is seeking control of the New York New Haven & Hartford Railroad. It has been reported in New York that the Canadian road had bought 100,000 shares of New Haven stock with that purpose in view.

"I can truthfully declare to the contrary," Mr. Beatty stated. "The Canadian Pacific has no future plans for grouping or consolidating or expanding into New England No one has been authorized to buy a single share of any New England railroad and I cannot understand how the report obtained circulation."

HOME BEAUTIFUL EXPOSITION

FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF BETTER HOMES, THEIR EQUIPMENT AND MAINTENANCE

MECHANICS BUILDING - APRIL 21 to MAY 4 - BOSTON, MASS.

EXPERT OUTLINES HOME-BUILDING STEPS

What to do if you want to own your own home, the best types of architecture, and the most satisfactory system of lighting, were the principal things discussed in the lecture hall of the Home Beautiful Exposition the first big day of the exhibition in Mechanics Building

There were other matters of interest throughout the day and evening, among them being a motion-picture showing of coffee growing in Brazil, showing how the beverage comes from the bean to the cup, under the direction of Charles Greeley; how to serve grape fruit and oranges, by Mrs. Caroline Moorhead, of Tampa, Fla; and "The Royal Sport of Bird Banding, by Laurence Fletcher of the Massachusetts Audubon Society.

ALL WELL ATTENDED.

All the lectures and special attractions were well attended, especially by the women. The demonstrations by Mrs. Moorhead were particularly interesting, not only because of their appeal to the inner man, but because of the novel ways in which this Southern woman prepared her fruits.

She was announced as being prepared to show how to cut a grape fruit into three halves, and the amount of clear meat she drew forth from one grape fruit made it appear that she was right. Her special dishes and her fruit candies were also dainty as well as nourishing, and gave many mothers a new plan for giving the children something as a substitute for candies.

THRIFT FIRST NECESSITY.

The principal speaker of the day was James D. Henderson, of the firm of Henderson & Ross, his topic being "First Steps in Home Owning." Mr. Henderson's remarks were aimed at those who want to build or own a home, but do not understand how to go about to do it. Thrift, he said, was the first important thing to get going. He said in part:

"When you rent, you buy the landlord's house for him; your money pays his taxes and takes care of the depreciation of the property. If you move, there is never a refund on all the money you have paid him.

"If you own your own home, and have to sell it for any reason, you can get back your initial payment with enough more to pay a profit on every penny you have put into it.

"I can almost hear hundreds of young couples saying, 'That's all very well to say, but how are you going to do it? It takes every cent we have to live.' Yet almost every home owner of moderate circumstances has met the same problem and has determined to save until he has enough for the first payment. Trite as is the saying, 'Where there's a will, there's a way,' it is none the less true. It doesn't take very much thinking to spend every cent of the home earnings, it takes less thinking to get into debt. Surely, if home-owning is worth accomplishment, it is worth a little stinting at the start."

BUYING LOT.

Mr. Henderson then told how to buy land for the home. "There are many desirable lots of ground that may be secured at first payments of one hundred dollars or so," he said. "Such lots, if chosen wisely, may prove to be very good investments for resale at a profit, so that you can then go and purchase another lot at a larger payment than you would have first considered.

"Buy wisely; don't be in a hurry to select, but consider carefully from these angles. First, compare the lot with prices of lots nearby to judge a fair average price; then find out whether the lot may be taxed or assessed for street improvements, whether finished or unfinished. Be very careful about 'wild cat' promotion schemes in subdividing lots. Most companies deal fairly, but you might get caught in a very poor investment.

"If you are buying for your own home, then personal taste, the needs of commuters in the family, the nearness to schools and churches will enter into the question largely when selecting the neighborhood. The situation may thus be summed up very concisely. First, buy only in growing industrial cities, second, buy only within one-half mile of a car line, but do not buy on a proposed car line; third, buy vacant lots inside the city limits, according to the neighborhood; fourth, buy small farms as near the city limits as possible, and always on or near to a car line.

SELL AT A PROFIT.

"Real estate is not for investors who want to turn over their capital often. It is usually better to plan for carrying a home investment for three or four years. Of course, it is possible to build and sell at a profit, almost immediately, in fast-growing communities, under the present house shortage."

Following Mr. Henderson's remarks came Harry M. Ramsay, a Boston architect, who showed fifty or more views of attractive homes which can be built at moderate cost.

The principal speaker of the evening was Dr. Howard Lyon, of Boston, who talked on "Illumination in the Home," accompanying his talk with demonstrations to show what was best for the eyes and for the beauty effect in placing lights.

MOTHERS' DAY TODAY.

Tuesday is given on the program as "Mothers' Day," with this program: Round table discussion of mothers' problems, from 10 to 12 o'clock, with Miss Lucy Wheelock presiding; at 1.45, "How to Prepare Fruits for Children," by Mrs. Moorhead; at 2.15, "Correct Meal Service," with demonstrations of setting the table for luncheon and dinner, by students from Miss Farmer's School of Cooking, under the direction of Miss Alice Bradley; at 3, "Food for Children, by Miss Ruth L. White, of the Community Health Association, assisted by students from Simmons College; at 3.35, "The First Aid Cabinet in the Home, and its Practical Application," by Dr. J. H. Shortell, of Boston; at 4.05, a travelogue film of Washington, the National Capital, by Charles E. Greeley.

BABY SHOW MONDAY.

In the evening there will be folk dances by students of the Wheelock School, under the direction of Miss Alice Wyman, at 7.15; and at 7.45, "Durant Night," an exhibition and rally with the Durant chorus and orchestra.

Among the special features of the exposition which will exceed in popularity the showing of previous years will be the baby show, which starts next Monday. Already hundreds of applications are in the hands of L. M. Rich, who has this feature in charge, and more are coming in daily. In order that there be no crush at the last moment, Mr. Rich desires that applications be made out and sent in at once. Blanks may be obtained at the offices of the Exposition, No. 5 Park square. Mr. Rich and his assistant, Mrs. Bartlett, are especially desirous of filling at once the class for fat babies and the class for twins.

The cement bungalow and garage erected on the stage by the Portland Cement Association is proving to be one of the most popular exhibits of the show. Furniture and furnishings, and all things that go to make up a home, are of course much sought, especially by the women.

AT DURANT BOOTH.

The Durant meeting will be held in Paul Revere Hall at 7.45. The orchestra of 25 pieces will be composed of Durant members, and the community singing by the Durant chorus will be under the leadership of Mrs. Edith Holt. During the evening there will be a special demonstration of physical education.

The speaker of the evening will be Dr. Blanche Denig, president, followed by Miss Florence Child, vice-president, and Miss Lotta Clark, chairman of the membership campaign committee.

The model of the proposed building and grounds on the Huntington avenue location is on exhibition at the Durant booth and is attracting much attention.

PURE JUICES OF FRUITS FOUND IN ZA-REX

Two hundred and fifty thousand [illegible] or three million bottles of fruit syrups were sold for family beverage use in New England last year.

Packed mostly in plain pint bottles—even without the handicap of an unattractive package—these fruit syrups met with immediate public demand and approval.

Who doesn't crave a real drink full-bodied and rich with the fruit flavor. The pure concentrated strength of fruit syrups makes it possible to "home mix" a most delicious drink simply by adding seven parts water.

In this way a pint of fruit syrup makes a gallon or sixteen big glassfuls of thirst quenchers, the most economical drink on the market, appealing to the poorer classes as well as the rich.

Besides being delicious thirst quenchers fruit syrups also furnish an ideal sweet and concentrated food for the inclusion of fruit juices in the diet. A drink made from them is a real tonic and body builder. The natural fruit sugars, with cane sugar added, possess distinct food values.

Vitamines are present in liberal amounts. The fruit acids furnish energy to the entire muscular and nervous system. Natural potash in the juices is useful in clearing and strengthening kidneys, liver and intestines. It stimulates and purifies the blood and aids digestion. Pure fruit juices are natural preventatives of disease.

Za Rex Punch, a blending of six Pure Fruit Juices and Za Rex Pure Fruit-O-Syrups, (Raspberry, Strawberry, Lemon, Orange, Lemon and Lime), contain no so-called Fruit Extracts or Concentrates, but are made from the Pure Fruit Juices themselves, sweetened with Cane Sugar—without coal tar or aniline dyes or acids.

The Za Rex Pint Jug is handsomely paneled and fluted to give a cut-glass effect.

TENNESSEE CEDAR CHEST FOR HOME

"Every home should have a cedar chest," said Mr. H. M. Bake, manager of Bay State Fibre Company. "It is the general idea that cedar chests can be made of cedar and still be moth proof long.

"This rule does not apply in many cases. For a cedar chest to be absolutely moth repelling it must be made from 'Tennessee Mountain Cedar,' or in other words 'Southern Mountain Cedar,' and should not completely full of knots and be made from 'Tennessee Mountain Scrub,' or from cedar south of the 'Mason & Dixon Line,' cannot be depended upon for protection and for furs or woolen garments.

"The Bay State Fibre Company control outputs of cedar chests from two factories in the heart of the Southern district.

They are also offering to factories in Maine who need [illegible] from Tennessee to [illegible] into chests.

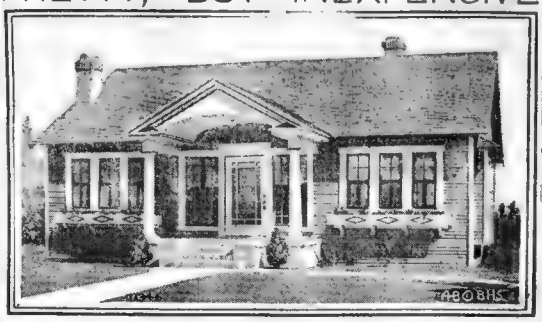
PRETTY, BUT INEXPENSIVE



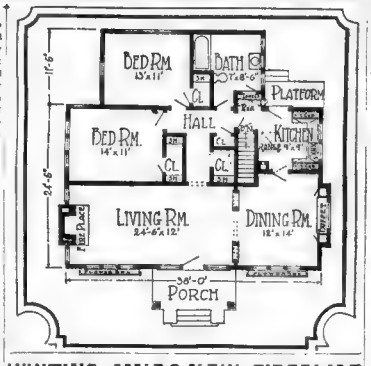
Years ago the home shown in the accompanying illustration would have been described as a one-story cottage. However, had it been built at that time it would not have had the artistic porch, and probably the window boxes would have been missing. Also the first floor would have been on or little above the ground level. The progress in home architecture is forcibly demonstrated in this house. Here we have a most attractive small home; one that may be built for a comparatively small sum. However, it is good to look at and supplies all the conveniences that are demanded by the modern home owner.

Shown by the floor plan are the arrangement of the rooms and their sizes, and the conveniences that make American homes the finest in the world. The entrance leads into a living room that is 24 feet, 6 inches long and 12 feet wide. At the end is a fire place, while connected with the living room at the front by a colonnade opening is the dining room, 12 by 14 feet. At the back of the dining room is the kitchen 9 feet square, also that provides an efficient workroom for the housekeeper.

A short hall leading out of the living room connects with another short hall at the back. At the end of the hall is the bathroom, while opening off the hall are two good sized bedrooms one 11 by 14 feet and the other 11 by 13 feet. Each bedroom has a closet with drawers and shelves opening off it, while there is a linen closet off the hall.

The dimensions of the house over all are only 28 to 24 feet 6 inches, yet in this space there has been provided a roomy comfortable and convenient home—one large enough for the average family.

In designing homes such as this the American architects excel. Here is a compact house of the simplest construction made into a most attractive little home.



WHITING MAIDS SERVING MILK AT EXHIBIT

The Whiting Milk Company is well represented at the Home Beautiful Exposition this year. They have beautifully decorated exhibits in central parts of the hall, where attractive looking dairy maids are serving Whiting's products.

The company is introducing a new drink called "Tinkle," a chocolate flavored dairy drink, consisting of pure milk chocolate and pasturized milk of the "Grade A" quality which D. Whiting & Sons is noted for.

Tinkle" is served from a novel dispenser, designed in the shape of a cow bell, made of white porcelain. This drink has gained popularity from the very start of the show and judging from increasing amount of "Tinkle" sold every hour to the crowds gathered around the booths, its success as the popular summer beverage is assured.

The activities of the Whiting Co. in the special Baby Show program are very prominent. They are urging their thousands of customers who have babies in their homes to enter the children in the various baby contests.

Entry blanks for these contests may be secured from any Whiting salesman.

NEW FIREPLACE DEPARTMENT AT HUNTER'S

One of the new features of the "White Basement" of the J. B. Hunter Company, 60 Summer street, recently enlarged, is the addition of a new department for the fire place and its equipment. It contains an attractive assortment of English importations from Birmingham as well as many high class products of American manufacturers. This department includes a wide variety of andirons, fire place sets, spark screens, Lapp Coal lighters, ornamental shovels and coal buckets and ornamental brass jardinieres, candlesticks and candelabras. Also an unusual display of old English brass lanterns and plaques are shown. This department formerly was on the fourth floor. It is more accessible now and is located at the foot of the stairs leading into the "White Basement."

Two other departments which have been enlarged and are located in the basement are the paints and varnishes, containing a complete line of Old Namel and Sherwin-Williams products, and the department of garden supplies. The former department is in charge of an expert who is always ready to demonstrate the proper coating process for the use of these paints, varnishes and stains.

EASY CHAIR FOR MEN ALWAYS WELCOME

If there is anything more luxurious to the mind of a man than an easy chair which admits of a comfortable tilt and is well adapted for resting, it is some article of furniture yet to be discovered.

No statistical study of the relation between men who like to go out evenings and the lack of comfortable chairs in the home, has ever been made, but there is no doubt in the minds of those who have given the subject thought, that more than a casual relation exists between the two.

When the corner saloon was opening, one thing always to be observed was the comfort of the chairs. The proprietor knew better than to test the endurance of his customers.

And after sitting through the early part of the evening on straight, hard chairs at home, it was small wonder that father would put on his coat and announce that he was just going around the corner for a little while, and would be back shortly. The minutes sometimes lengthened into hours, but father, sunk deep into the comfortable curves of a real chair, was unmindful of the time.

If the man of the house doesn't have a favorite chair—if he seems to be just as willing to sit in one place as another—there is something vitally wrong to be remedied.

FURNITURE SHOULD ALWAYS BALANCE

The arrangement of your furniture depends upon conditions of room size, wall spaces, built-in features, your particular use for the piece and its intended position. For instance, cabinets, bookcases, large consoles, and commodes are wall pieces and so cater-corner arrangement is wrong. Similarly, davenports, tables, desks must be against a right proportioned wall space or at right angles to it. These pieces limited in spacing, one should arrange first. Chairs one may generally arrange informally, though related to a group, but there are some wall chairs which must be placed against the wall. One should group furniture for conversation, reading, writing, depending upon one's habits. Light must come over the left shoulder for reading or writing, from the side or sides for dressing, and not in the eyes when sleeping. Something big must balance with something high.

SLADE'S SPICE SHOW GREAT FEATURE

The story of spices reads like a romance, declares George H. Carter, chairman of the Spice Grinders' Section of the American Spice Trade Association, and treasurer of D. & L. Slade Company, of State street, Boston. From time immemorial spices have been highly prized. They have been the causes of war and have aroused the ambitions of discoverers. They have been presented to kings and paid to them as tribute, so valuable and highly esteemed were they.

Spices were contributing causes for the discovery of the passage around the Cape of Good Hope, for the discovery of America, and for the colonizing of the East Indies by the Portuguese and the Dutch.

It was because the Venetians and Genoese had almost a monopoly of the pepper trade that the Portuguese sought out the sea route around the Cape of Good Hope, and the pepper trade passed into the hands of the Portuguese, who retained it for two hundred years. The same causes operated to send Columbus off to discover America, as he sought to find a shorter route to the East Indies.

It used to be a common fallacy that spices were injurious, drying up the blood, etc. A careful study by dietitians, however, shows that spices have a most helpful effect. That the odor of a well seasoned dish has a powerful influence in the digestion of food is seen in the familiar mouth-watering that comes in anticipation of eating a delicious smelling dish of food.

AID TO DIGESTION.

The saliva formed part of the digestive process and the digestive juices begin flowing in anticipation of the coming feast of good things, well seasoned with sweet smelling spices.

Slade's Spices, prepared and marketed by D. & L. Slade Company, of State street, Boston, are not only pure, in the meaning of being absolutely free from adulterant or foreign substances, but they are also of finest quality.

At Booth No. 751 at the Home Beautiful Exposition, is an attractive exposition, where the full line of Slade's Spices is displayed, and where experts in the use of spices for culinary purposes are ready to advise and suggest how these various spices may be used to make food more appetizing and therefore more nourishing.

TAUNTON FAMOUS FOR ITS GLENWOOD RANGES

If you wrote the words, "Taunton, Massachusetts," on a piece of cardboard and handed it to a thousand persons apres from Portland Me., to Portland, Ore., and from Nova Scotia to the Gulf, and asked them what the name "Taunton, Massachusetts" suggested to their minds, probably the answers from 90 per cent of the persons would be "The Glenwood Range," shown at the Home Beautiful.

Taunton is famous for its ranges and the reason is obvious. While the how parts of America were used to mushroom growths in industry Taunton was and is a city of the old New England type. Its people have been for generations thrifty Yankees, and when night's labors were over they gathered on their porches and talked about the weather, the crops, politics and the affairs of their neighbors. Gossip was their principal form of entertainment.

Into this community came the Glenwood range and the people talked about it. They liked it, bought it and they set aside a portion of their income to be devoted to publicity purposes to tell New England what a fine piece of furniture the Glenwood was. For more than a quarter of a century magazines and newspapers have carried the Glenwood slogan, "Make Cooking Easy," into practically every American home.

The great value of this slogan is that it was true. It appealed to housekeepers and the range they bought as a result of it confirmed the slogan until today over 1,000,000 users know by experience that Make Cooking Easy" is synonymous with "Glenwood Range."

NOTED FOR INDUSTRY.

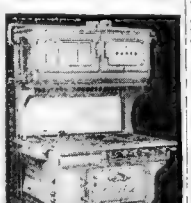
The city of Taunton is famous for a big stove industry, largely because it was famous for stoves when both the industry and the town were smaller. It had become a name a hundred years ago. It has been famous for

The craft [illegible] and stove [illegible] handed down from generation to generation. The explains why a majority of Taunton is so large [illegible] today.

The Glenwood range had a small beginning. [illegible] fifty-four years ago in a [illegible] three young men, Walter E. Wilbur as a skilled molder, George L. Wilbur as designer and pattern maker, and Charles F. Baker as foreman. They all turned carpenter to add a shed to their barn in order to accommodate their molding furnace.

Their output, limited by modern standards of production, was ridiculous—four ranges a day. But they were good ranges—that was the important point. Quality is the [illegible] element of success, but the [illegible] will not prevail in a world of [illegible] petition.

The three men who founded the Glenwood range business [illegible] up every two minutes.



FAMOUS AUTOPIANO AMONG EXHIBITS

E. B. Wood of the Charles S. Norris Piano House, who probably has sold more pianos and players than any individual in America during his long association with the business, is receiving friends and customers at the Home Beautiful Exposition—Sections 218 to 220—where he is featuring the Autopiano.

This is the celebrated player piano that became world famous when it received honors from the Vatican and the indorsement of L'Abbe Perosi, conductor of the famous Sistine Choir.

In a single generation the business has increased 5,000 per cent.

Glenwood sales for October, 1922, were larger than all sales of single month and practically the entire year of 1900. The year 1922 was by far the largest in the history of the company. Within a few years ago a modern [illegible] was added, and the [illegible] being a complete line of [illegible] and appliances.

YOUNG MEN NEEDED.

Some years before these men died they realized that for any organization to carry on and have a survival value young men must be trained for this task.

The present management consists of Joseph L. Anthony in charge of manufacturing, Robert M. Leach in charge of the financial end and Merle E. Abbott in charge of sales and advertising, all of whom have contributed much to the success of the company during the last few years.

The Glenwood people [illegible] to prosper, and have recently awarded contracts for new building which will increase the capacity [illegible] per cent. over their [illegible] making this company one of the largest, if not the largest stove concern in the United States.

The officials have realized that good merchandising methods were essential for the promotion of Glenwood products, and for years have been associated with Mr. Leberon Atherton in operating a chain of furniture stores in many New England cities, where it is possible to purchase one of the famous Glenwood ranges, regardless of your income.

HAVE 15 STORES.

Much credit is due Mr. Atherton for the splendid success of these stores, two new ones having been added during 1922, making a total of fifteen at the present time.

In the average Glenwood range there are 150 parts, and as each part comes from its casting box it contains the molder's number—an individual trade mark of the craftsman responsible for its soundness.

The assembled range then receives another trade-mark, and it is this trade mark that the housewife has been educated to look for through many years of wisely directed publicity, for the advertising of the Glenwood Ranges has kept proportionate pace with its growth. This is really a story of a good product and good publicity, both necessary and both most useful when working together.

You will find in the Glenwood stove foundries a monument to modern business efficiency. You will be hospitably received and shown many things of interest. If you are a merchant dealing in household articles, you will be professionally interested but in any event you will be humanely interested because if you do not sell ranges, you buy ranges.

A large proportion of the meals you eat are cooked in Glenwood Ranges. They are probably the best known in the country today, and the retail merchant who has the agency for his town is fortunate indeed. Like sterling on silver, the name Glenwood on a range is to the majority of the public an indication that it is the standard by which comparison is made.

IN GRANDMA'S DAY.

A popular model of forty-four years ago; constructed to give a lifetime of service—a conscientious endeavor achieved beyond all doubt, for today it is not uncommon to find the early Glenwood product in active service.

The manufacturers of the now famous Glenwood, by rapidly maintaining that praise-worthy policy enacted in the beginning, established an unparalleled demand for their product.

The Glenwood people then, as to-day, were striving to produce up-to-date ranges, and they were successful too. In fact, this Glenwood of forty-four years ago is the same in many respects as the range of today. The filigree and fancy work, considered so desirable at that time, is replaced by unparalleled simplicity and easy to care for—a long stride in the stove industry.

MANY NOVEL FEATURES.

Ever changing conditions in the stove trade, and progressiveness on the part of the Glenwood people have brought to our generation a wonderful revolution in cooking. Bright gleaming, grey porcelain enamel finish — so sanitary and easy to clean. All enamel work is done in their new, modern enameling plant. Glenwood Robertshaw Oven Heat Control —Just set the pointer for heat desired and proceed with your work.

The Glenwood line comprises coal, wood, gas and combination ranges, heating stoves and furnaces. They are handsome, convenient and mechanically right—just Glenwood assures the most modern cooking and heating appliances. They are strictly guaranteed to give the service they were intended to give.

LEGAL HINTS TO THE HOME BUYER

By JOHN LYLE VETTE.
Attorney for Chicago Real Estate Board.

Because they are so widely used in the sale of homes and land intended for home sites, installment sales contracts are the most important study for the prospective home owner.

These contracts ordinarily provide for a certain payment down and then for the payment of the balance in monthly installments over the deferred payments, the whole to bear an agreed rate of interest and it need to be given when the price is fully paid.

Sometimes the contract provides for delivery of the deed before the whole, but after a substantial part of the price has been paid, in which event a purchase money mortgage for the balance is given.

JOINT TENANCY.

If it is the desire of a purchaser that the home should go to his wife in the event of his death, the contract should provide that the deed from the seller should run to himself and wife not in tenancy in common but in joint tenancy. Furthermore it would provide that if one of them died before they are entitled to a deed, the purchaser's interest in the contract shall go to, and the deed when given shall be made to, the survivor. Much trouble and confusion has resulted from a failure to observe this precaution. The principal advantage of a joint tenancy is that it obviates the trouble, delay and expense involved in probating the decedent's estate.

RENEWAL OF MORTGAGE.

Often property is sold on the installment plan, subject to a mortgage which will mature before the purchase price is fully paid. Unless the purchaser is prepared to pay off the mortgage at maturity the contract should provide for obtaining a new mortgage or an extension of the existing one and state who is to bear the expense thereof. It should also obligate both seller and purchaser to execute such papers as may become necessary for that purpose.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE, ETC.

The contract should obligate the seller to furnish satisfactory evidence of his title, such as an abstract guarantee policy, or Torrens certificate brought down to date of the contract or date of delivery of deed, whichever is agreed upon. Unless the purchaser is willing to rely upon the financial responsibility of the seller, he should either have the title examined before he signs the contract or have the contract so phrased that it won't be operative as a contract if the title turns out to be defective, and if he takes the latter course he should have the title examined as soon after he signs the contract as possible. If the seller himself has no title but only a contract for the purchase of the property, the purchaser after completing his payments might find himself unable to obtain a deed.

DEFAULT IN TAXES, ETC.

From the seller's point of view it is important not only that the purchaser should be obligated to pay all taxes, assessments and interest and principal on encumbrance, but also that if the purchaser defaults the seller must at his option pay any such item and thereby make the amount thereof so much additional indebtedness due under the contract.

FORFEITURES.

Most installment contracts provide that in case of default by the purchaser, the seller may forfeit the contract, repossess the property and retain the payments already made in liquidated damages. It is to the advantage of the purchaser to have this right limited in cases where the default shall have continued for some specific time as for example, for thirty days. Or the contract could be made to require a definite period of days' notice before the exercise of the right to forfeit. In case forfeiture the seller's protection, provision should be made for some sort of substitute service. If personal service should be impossible. In this connection, it is pertinent to note that courts do not favor forfeitures, and are prone to seize upon slight circumstances as evidence of a waiver of the right to forfeit according to the strict terms of the contract. For example, if the purchaser has been in habit of delaying his payments after their due dates and the seller has accepted them without complaint, a court would hold he cannot thereafter forfeit for a default unless he gives the purchaser reasonable notice of his intention to do so. What is reasonable is a question of fact in each case, depending on all the circumstances.

BUY FURNITURE THAT WILL LAST

Good furniture is never cheap furniture. Although a purchase may represent an excellent value for the price, a low price can never command high quality. Cheap furniture is always cheap, and, sooner or later will be found with far many years the careful buyer will pay a little more for good pieces which will give satisfaction and service for a number of years rather than a quantity of cheaper ones.

In the purchase of furniture there is no time like the present. Here the purchaser can find the desired pay [illegible] and [illegible] that is less [illegible] Expert and [illegible] are offered three-piece suites, in popular grades, will range in price from $350 to $750 while special suites will often find them modest still lower. Mohair-covered three-piece suites will range from $490 to $750 in popular grades, with a lower minimum at this time of year.

SAFE RULE TO FOLLOW.

Although the housewife may be hard put to see enough difference in quality to warrant such a range in price, the difference is there and subsequent use will make it apparent. A safe rule to follow on the [illegible] and [illegible] is to buy at least a $___ three-piece suite in velour or tapestry and not less than $450 in mohair. In the one case the housewife can not see her way clear to purchase a complete suite at the price is successful it is far better to purchase a davenport and one good chair than to buy three mediocre pieces. An odd chair to match can always be found later.

When it comes to a choice of covering material three elements enter in. The first, of course, is taste and desire, the second, wearing qualities, and the third, price. All coverings are in good taste—tapestries, velours, leathers, damasks, etc. The popular grades of velour and tapestry are about the same in price, while mohair is more expensive. A good grade of mohair is almost weatherproof, experience proving that it will outwear leather. Being a highly absorbent wool, however, it is readily attacked by moths, hence care must be exercised in guarding against these pests. But this one objection should not militate against mohair since the ordinary precepts of cleanliness will serve to prevent moth ravages.

WHERE HARD WEAR COMES.

It is not a good policy to purchase combination mohair and velour furniture, especially if the velour is used to cover the arms. It is evident that the arms receive the hardest wear, hence velour-covered arms will wear out much sooner than the mohair on the piece. Velour on the outside arms and back is not objectionable since these parts receive no direct wear.

When it comes to the inside construction of upholstered furniture this can largely be determined by the price of the goods. A carefully constructed job with high grade materials will naturally cost more than a cheaply-built piece. Appearance here is very deceptive, yet the word of a reliable dealer can always be taken, in that his function is to satisfy his customers.

In a word, you get just what you pay for when you buy furniture. The price asked is in direct proportion to the cost of the goods and labor involved in creating the pieces. Cheap material, skimped in production, will be sold at a low price and good furniture cannot be produced on this basis. Your dealer's advice will be invaluable.

"NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY FURNITURE"

Fred G. Hersey advises immediate purchase of furniture by the public. Prices are climbing, he says, and will continue to climb, in fact stocks now coming into the retail market is billed by the manufacturers at an increased price.

Drake & Hersey will hold the old low prices on every piece of furniture in their warerooms that was bought before the present rise, will allow the public to make selections at these low prices and hold the furniture until such time as it is called for without a storage charge.

Mr. Hersey calls attention to the [illegible] of his firm in featuring genuine mohair and velour combination living room suite at $169.50 as a typical example of values they furnish in exhibiting at the Home Beautiful Exposition.

COMFORT BEDDING FINELY DISPLAYED

The year of 1923 marks an epoch in the development of the New England Bedding Company, distributors of the Comfort line of couch hammocks. Twenty years of persistent effort has moulded this organization into an efficient unit that devotes itself exclusively to the production of Comfort-featured articles for sleep and rest.

The Comfort couch hammocks and swaying divans are designed and constructed under the supervision of men of recognized ability. The present year, [illegible] for a season which is expected to be one of the [illegible] in the history of [illegible] [illegible] 13 numbers from which one can select the very one his heart desires. Of this number, the padded [illegible] predominate. The display is feature at the Home Beautiful show.

WATERSEAL TILE ROOF NEVER WEARS OUT

One of the exhibits which is attracting much attention at the Home Beautiful Exposition is the Waterseal tile roof, manufactured and sold by the [illegible] Company of [illegible] Mass. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

HOUSEHOLD LIBERTY RANGE BURNS THREE FUELS

Everybody must have some appliance on which the good things to eat may be cooked

From the old fashioned brick oven to the present day Household Liberty [illegible] A great [illegible] in the [illegible] of cooking of a range that would [illegible] as well as coal and wood, marked another forward step.

Today the Household Liberty is "dual" to date," burning three fuels gas as well as coal and wood.

PERFECTION REACHED.

Thus one improvement after another has been made and from the [illegible] ing it would seem that perfection has been reached in the Household Liberty.

Those at the Home Beautiful Exposition have been particularly interested in the Household range exhibit where are displayed the latest models in the Household line.

The Household Liberty is a range of majestic beauty and embodies every improvement that assures maximum cooking facilities and yet is only forty-three inches long.

DANGER ELIMINATED.

You can use coal or wood and gas at the same time. The fire under each is distinct. There is not the slightest element or danger in the use of this range. It is as near perfect as a range can be made.

There are four covers over the coal and wood compartments—five burners over the gas—one a simmerer. You can actually cook eight different vegetables and keep another simmering hot; and this is by no means the limit of the convenience possible in the use of the Household Liberty.

OVENS ARE ROOMY.

All these ovens are roomy and accommodate a [illegible] of food.

The [illegible] gives [illegible] perfect [illegible] ... would [illegible] cup of water or set an [illegible] shortened family Thanksgiving dinner.

The following items in detail will interest the particularly busy housewife:

Everything is simple, compact, convenient.

BROILER EASY TO CLEAN.

The gas broiler oven has a large porcelain enameled pan. The gray enamel Household Liberty is cleaned as quick as a wink. Just rub a cloth over it.

On the coal oven the Household Liberty has a heat indicator telling at a glance when the oven is just right for the particular thing you may wish to bake.

The gas oven with glass paneled doors affords opportunity to see the cake, etc., as it is baking.

The gas oven heats quickly and retains the heat while the gas is on. Yet when shut off, cools right down, making it the ideal "Built to Bake" range. Of course, the Household Liberty is made in the popular black, as well as the gray enamel.

BUILT TO BAKE.

The manufacturers claim that the Household Liberty does everything ever done by any two ranges and does it better

Certain it is that the Household Range long ago earned the reputation as the range that's "Built to Bake."

It requires one of the largest foundries in New England, a plant covering several acres, to mold it to build Household Ranges.

The feature of the beautiful exhibit of the White Warner Co. plant in spaces 292 and 293 is the Liberty Household Range framed in a cabinet of velvet and gold under a battery of electric lights.

While the Household Liberty is naturally the great attraction and is recognized as the master piece in ranges, many other models are made and being shown at the Home Beautiful Exposition.

'K-L' PRODUCT IS SURE DEATH TO MOTHS

"Most people will be amazed to learn that moths destroy more than $50,000,000 worth of valuables every year in the United States alone," said John I. Mullowney, general manager of the K-L Products Distributing Co. "Now fortunately, said Mr. Mullowney, "by means of absolute preventing the destruction caused by moths has been discovered and perfected after experimentation continuing more than thirty years. The process has been made so simple, the expense so slight and the results so certain that there is no excuse for anyone's allowing moths to enter and ruin their valuable rugs, furs, tapestries, carpets, portieres, blankets and other moth-susceptible matter to be in their home.

"The inventor of this product, now of international prominence, is known as Moth K-L, studied the habits of moths assiduously. He experimented with every known narcotic, so-called, and found in the weaknesses and objections to each. Finally them perfected one entirely new and achieved his great aim."

Mr. Mullowney urged he per[son] to read the [illegible] would protect [illegible] against the ravages of moths.

"Moth K-L does not rely upon one for its effectiveness. It does not by merely killing the moth, but by using the egg and larva, or by using as a repellent for moths. A combination of all three of these methods gives Moth K-L its success under all conditions. The original formula, which has stood the test of time for about thirty years is now being marketed for general distribution all over the country. At 105-58 at the Home Beautiful Exposition it is being exhibited and demonstrated for the benefit of New England housewives."

VARNISH SAVES WARE AND TEAR ON LINOLEUM

The housewife who treads with busy step over the surface of her kitchen floor newly covered with linoleum notices within a month or two that it is beginning to show signs of wear. Parts of the pattern are wearing away, the color may be changing or the surface is spotting, somewhat depending upon the frequency with which it is scrubbed.

What might have been done—if anything—to preserve the linoleum?

According to the Institute of Paint and Varnish research of Washington, which has recently reported on a series of tests the entire difficulty may be overcome by the use of varnish either a high grade interior varnish or an all-purpose varnish should be used. A smooth, glossy finish is obtained by the application of two coats, allowing two days for drying between coats.

Linoleums thus treated were rubbed at thirty different times with various soaps and abrasive soap powders. Each sample was entirely unaffected, and the conclusion is inevitable that proper varnishing of linoleums should by no means be neglected. The varnish should be applied immediately after the linoleum is laid unless it is first desired to have it stretch to its permanent form on the floor.

Better take a look today at your cellar and back yard and see if there is any pile of rubbish the firemen might regard as a fire hazard. For the fire inspectors, who have started a tour of every building in Boston with three or more suites, may drop in on you any day between now and May 15.

RESTFUL WALLPAPER THAT MAKES CHARMING BEDROOMS

Immense Variety Enables Exact Achievement of desired Effect

They are simply dressed—bed-rooms.

They are the linen-room sanitary of the house.

They are the rooms for confidences.

They are the rooms for dreams. They are, of all rooms nearest the heart.

What woman does not wish joy when she has the chance to "do over" a bedroom—perhaps a drab, boring room with no meaning or life or personality.

Wallpapers by the hundreds of delightful wall papers for her to choose from—for designers have excelled themselves for bedrooms. She can have exactly the kind of bedroom to suit her individuality—and a bedroom must suit the late at night when one is tired—she does not wish to be jarred and early in the morning it is tragic to be irritated.

There are sunny yellows that the grayest morning in the world cannot discourage.

There are papers where flowers bloom so sweetly that the biggest Winter morning can't be cheerful.

There are such quaint and pretty stripes straight from revival days, walls that even if a trolley jangles by outside it seems unreal, and far away. And if you are one of those people like the man who said he could bear "anybody but a person who smiles before breakfast"—there are quiet papers of dignified elegance that fit no matter what mood.

And what they all express is a deep peace that brings "—innocent sleep, sleep that knits up the ravelled sleeve of care."

There was a time when people made bedroom papers with restless figures—birds that never alighted, flowers that an inch away from their and other unsatisfying pictures that drove the one who had to lie in bed and stare them into a mild insanity. And then the day of geometric figures—that one enjoined and resented going in all directions while one gradually went mad.

But those times are past—and the newer papers for bedrooms are restful, peaceful, quiet—papers that never annoy as one sees them day after day.

For the children's bedroom and the nursery there are the most fascinating papers. There is an all over pattern where the figures represent toys—wooden horses, wooden dolls, prancing horses—toy soldiers—inspiring figures to arouse the child's imagination and amuse him—lead him to "make up" stories about them for himself. And there are no end of absolutely delightful friezes—such one a happy fairy story in itself. These are placed about half way up the wall where the little child can easily see them. The nursery can never again be a friendless room. Or if the figures of the frieze are large enough to be seen readily, place it there and the nursery, where the little one can watch them from his crib, and gently dream of them in those moments of most fancy between waking and sleeping.

BURNS CASH AT GYPSY'S WORD TO FOIL EVIL

New York, April 24.—Mrs. Esther Helfeint told in Essex Market Court of how she had burned $1 and $5 bills and then given $447 to an alleged fortune teller to save her family of ten from death.

Mrs. Helfeint made complaint against Angelina Carumbuto, charging extortion. She said she went to Mrs. Carumbuto to learn how she could save her ten children from death.

She says the woman told her she should burn up some money which she did. Then record to her testimony, Mrs. Carumbuto told her to bring a sum of money—less than $500.

Mrs. Helfeint says she drew $447 from banks and took it to the alleged fortune teller. A second woman who appeared at the scene placed the cash in her bosom and vanished.

Mrs. Carumbuto, she said went through the motion of burning up some papers claiming it was the $447. Mrs. Carumbuto in court had a two weeks old baby in her arms and was dressed in gypsy costume. She was held in $500 for examination.

TELLS COTTON MEN TO SPEED UP MANPOWER

Providence, April 24.—A tour of the textile centres of the South by H. C. Meserve, secretary of the Rhode Island Association of Cotton Manufacturers convinced him that the industrial history of New England would be repeated in the South, he reported at the annual meeting of the association, which opened here today.

Joe Calder of Lexington, a cotton mill engineer, said:

"The outstanding problem today of the Northern cotton manufacturer is to increase the output per man hour in the mill in the face of materially economic limitations as compared with his competitors elsewhere.

"To do this he must encourage initiative in workers and maintain supervision and plant facilities and efficient arrangement and adjustment of the same.

"Such a goal will save labor, but a reduction of help will not suffice alone to put a mill and let rest of the problem of admittedly more valuable labor unemployed. Four[illegible] support for the road, paid would [illegible] and maintained.

MUST SATISFY WORKERS.

"It is no longer possible for a [illegible] to secure steady labor [illegible] maintaining the [illegible] of tradition. New England mill management. Handing down from [illegible] to time decisions affecting wages [illegible] workers who are seemingly based upon shop records of performance produces only angry reaction frequently and dubious employee[illegible] the merits of the case. A new atmosphere and a new way of working together must be provided [illegible].

"We [illegible] and treasurer of the association [illegible] was an official delegate to the International Chamber Conference at Rio de Janeiro in March and the world in order to avoid a famine in cotton must turn to [illegible] Cotton is a delicate [illegible] its sources of supply. By the cotton growing countries of the world can [illegible] possible [illegible] be seen in our South American neighbors, Brazil. "Cotton [illegible] is numerous in Brazil found growing wild in the mountains and [illegible] Rio now preparing about [illegible] a year. When under steps [illegible] are taken and [illegible] it might well be raising tenfold that total."

THE FOREIGN TRADE

John S. Lawrence of Boston discussing export conditions said:

"Most of us have no idea [illegible] today the balance of trade is favoring heavily in favor of the United States. But this is not correct. I have here a most carefully [illegible] table for the year 1923 [illegible] that if foreign loans and capital continue if invisible exchanges continue and if our [illegible] shuffle drop off, and we can pass through the period of adjustment as has cotton and copper we shall probably in 1923 be exporting gold. When the United States reaches this point we are likely to see a constructive movement developing, while for the past four years we have only seen a vicious cycle of endless nothings."

HUB HEALTH SHOW SET FOR OCTOBER

Greater Boston public and private health and social service agencies have joined in a plan to stage here the biggest and most complete health show ever given in the country. It will be given at Mechanics' Building beginning October 6 and closing October 13, and it is believed will inaugurate a new era of intelligence with respect to health, hygiene and all allied problems.

UPHOLSTERED FURNITURE IN BIG DEMAND

A display that is causing much favorable comment at the exposition is that of the Gardner Upholstered Furniture Company of Gardner, Mass., showing some of the nationally famous "Gardner Line" Upholstered Furniture.

This concern, though only a few years in existence, already is the acknowledged leader among the upholstered furniture manufacturers of New England. The constant high quality of its product and the unrivalled workmanship of its factory are primary causes of its rapid development and growth. Directing the operations of "The Gardner Line" are a few young men whose initiative, energy, foresight and perseverance have joined the qualities and characteristics of their merchandise into the front rank among the New England manufacturers.

The demand for "The Gardner Line" Upholstered Furniture has become more than four times the volume of a year ago. In order to meet this demand the floor space of the factory was doubled recently. Even this expansion has proved inadequate and shortly a large addition will be built which will triple the floor space and allow for a tremendous production capacity.

There is a totally new line of patterns for 1923. A few are shown at the exposition, and the beauty and quality of workmanship, coupled with their substantial appearance, have brought forth much admiration from the throngs that pause at Booths 83, 84 and 85 where "The Gardner Line" is on exhibition. The company is specializing in supplying home, hotels and clubs with upholstered furniture of the highest grade.

One of the recent features of "The Gardner Line" is the guarantee tag which is attached to every piece of furniture sent out of the factory. This tag is the company's certification of the high quality and character of its product and its unqualified belief that it stands solidly behind every piece of furniture it manufactures.

The officers of the company who are responsible for its remarkable success are Thomas F. Dennis, president and sales manager; William A. Earle, vice-president and superintendent of the factory, and James H. Noonan, treasurer and general manager.

COREY HILL ALLOWED NO MORE HOSPITALS

The Brookline selectmen struggled again with the problem of private hospitals in the Corey Hill section and decided that while they would not disturb those already there they would not allow any more to be established.

WANTS 200,000 POUNDS OF OLD CLOTHES

James A. Blyth of the National Near East Relief Committee, who is in Boston organizing a campaign to collect 200,000 pounds of cast off clothing in Greater Boston next Monday—the day which has been designated as bundle day — already has two trucks loads of shoes socks, coats and dresses on its hands. They came from Quincy and The women needed by the Wollaston Women's Club, had collected the clothing for a rummage sale. They are sending it instead to the refugees of the Near East.

James A. Blyth

Mayor James M. Curley has issued the following Bundle Day proclamation:

"The President of the United States in his proclamation for the relief of the suffering in the Near East has pointed out the almost unbelievable conditions existing among thousands of deported orphans and refugees.

"These conditions having been brought to my attention in all their misery, I am moved to make an additional appeal to the citizens of Greater Boston for aid similar to help relieve in a measure some of this great distress.

"I therefore appeal to the citizens of our city to look through their wardrobes and attics and select such garments as they can spare and bring the same to the fire stations nearest their residence. I further set forth Monday, the 30th of April, as Bundle Day in Greater Boston for the Near East Relief."

New England Owes All to Britain, Harvey Says

London, April 24.—"Britannia and Columbia clasp hands across the seven seas," declared Ambassador Harvey in a speech before the Royal society of St. George, at a banquet in Guild Hall.

"New England in the United States reverences Old England to which she owes her being—her true English principles—as against Socialist theories; her true English Christian faith as opposed to Bolshevist Pagan practices."

ONE MALDEN LINE GETS 5-CENT FARE

The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company has begun the sale of twenty-ride punch tickets for $1, good only between Forest Dale cemetery and Malden square. Those who do not buy tickets must continue to pay ten cents for the same ride. The company denied a five-cent fare within the city limits of Malden.

FIREMEN WARNED TO CARE FOR HATS

So many hats of Boston firemen have been crushed under the wheels of apparatus that Commissioner Gilson has had a general order detailing the proper treatment of the expensive headgear. It seems each hat costs the city $6.25, which fact the firemen sometimes forget in their haste to get to a blaze.

MOSQUITO WAR OPENS IN BAY STATE

A State-wide campaign to "wage war on mosquitoes" has been launched by the Anti-Mosquito Association of Massachusetts.

Details of the campaign and a series of the mosquito nuisance are contained in an article by George C. Whipple, professor of sanitary engineering in the Harvard Engineering School, published in the quarterly bulletin of the State Department of Public Health just off the press.

By concerted action it will be possible to eliminate the mosquito nuisance in the inhabited parts of Massachusetts. The proper remedy for the situation is one for the sick people to call on drainage for the mosquitoes," he says.

"Thanks to the cooperation of the press the people of Massachusetts know about the Anti-Mosquito Association, but the news does not seem to have reached the mosquitoes."

After a survey in which he shows a material decrease in the number of malaria cases in Massachusetts in the last eight years, Professor Whipple announces tentative plans for the campaign against the mosquito pest, which include a similar survey and use of the police power when necessary.

It an' it would be sure an' exciting to get into the game which was only one of the ways on Saturdays. An' yer Pa would put on his overalls an' yer Ma would carry the harm and just as her vowel first came the janitor and told us we'd got an hour to get out of the front hall where the stove was sudden under the stairs an' we all piled in an odd stool so it wouldn't fall.

One Sunday a couple of us were being taken, the choir sang a very beautiful hymn. The organ had been playing and the choir was quiet a needle being would have sounded like a pin. Suddenly there was heard a loud voice with the usual service. A visiting pastor to occupy the pulpit. He slightly mistook the number and announced the number of the hymn. I took it and handed it to the next person on the seat, supposing he would take it and hand it on. I took no notice and went on with the service. Suddenly I became aware that the whole congregation was looking at me. I looked at the hymn book and discovered that I had handed the hymn to the usher, and the quietness of the church.

Medbury Says---

By John P. Medbury

MEN all over the country are forming bachelor clubs. They're bound to stay single for [illegible] year, and longer, if possible.

MARRIED life is all right if you go into it, but it takes too much time to get used to it.

A MAN can't do two things at once, but he can get about three or four [illegible] at once.

MATRIMONY is wonderful, but it's not for single men.

THE average husband hates a [illegible] he's jealous just because he knows he wouldn't be [illegible] if he was.

THERE'D be many more bachelors today if it wasn't for women.

AND if it wasn't for women there wouldn't be so many bachelors.

A HUSBAND never realizes how [illegible] his mother-in-law is until after he's married.

HE knows it hasn't rained the [illegible] Rain has been [illegible] he wishes it had traveled.

ALL the tears aren't the victims of unrequited romances. Thousands of married men have been driven to [illegible] too.

SOMETIMES matrimony is just [illegible] for the heart as to [illegible].

A [illegible] married [illegible] believes [illegible] can be independent [illegible] a bunch of [illegible] come along and take [illegible] away from them.

STILL it's a free country and no one would want to [illegible].

BUT [illegible] women are just as bad [illegible] as men are both. A girl always thinks she has the next man in the world to [illegible] she marries him.

SHE marries him just so she can have somebody around the [illegible] and [illegible] he never comes.

WHEN matrimony enters the [illegible] romance flies out every window.

THE best way to do is to leave your door open and keep your windows closed.

DON'T worry about the place [illegible] it stuffy sooner or [illegible] one of you is bound to get [illegible].

MARRIAGE is like medicine [illegible] first [illegible] very seldom done [illegible] good.

STILL husbands and wives have [illegible] to be thankful for. The most married [illegible] in the world is to see a bachelor keeping company with an old maid and watch them both fight for their independence.

DON'T GET INTO THE HABIT OF BROODING OVER MISFORTUNE

Men wander about complaining and their troubles hard luck. Most of it a result to forget the disagreeable things in your life.

Many other persons have lost money on investments, and as [illegible] have had financial [illegible] that were unforeseen.

More than you could count have [illegible] got up one good job the [illegible] so your chances are [illegible] those of others.

But [illegible] right answer to get through life without trouble. Disappointments comes to all.

It is not a part of the program of this world that any one should get through life, from youth to old age on a bed of swan's down [illegible] his head was battered.

What [illegible] would be of [illegible] a to some [illegible] the habit of [illegible] your misfortunes.

The present and the future are [illegible] great regrets in our life [illegible] look forward the [illegible] of [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne.

Cupid at the Feast

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

Continuing the Interesting and Intensely Human Adventures of Anne and Jim

By Ann Lisle

THE magnificent and perfectly coifed Betty looked very wistful and young now in her simple mourning.

"There's no conundrum or mystery to my simple statement," declared Betty to Jim. "If tomorrow were not Monday and the end of Anne's week's leave of absence I might have to think up a special stunt to get her back to the office."

I'd been watching Jim and trying to figure out just what impression these seductive, half-bantering comments were making on him. His smile might have been indulgent and it might have been impatient. I decided to explain that I'd have to take at least another week's leave of absence in order to get out of Betty's apartment and establish either in our own quarters or in new and yet to-be-secured ones.

"You dear big—child," I said, with my head pressed close against Jim's heart. "Of course Neal wants to take care of Phoebe and cherish her. She's going to have a baby."

Jim unwound my arms and pushed me off more roughly than he knew.

"Why—Phoebe's nothing but a baby herself," he said resentfully.

"She's very happy," I murmured. "So is Neal. Oh, Jim—if we—"

Jim got his silver case from his pocket and selected a cork tipped cigarette with great care.

"Those kids" he frowned. "Babies themselves."

"Jim"—I pleaded.

"Jaime'" called Rosa from the hall. Jaime! I must see you."

Without another word, without even a glance of understanding, Jim turned and strode from the room.

The morning's work in my office was just getting well under way when Rosa Cordova came dashing in.

She insisted on an immediate interview.

"Will you come into my private office?" I asked.

"Yes, I want to tell you how it is you must help me bring Jaime to his senses."

I had an idea that Rosa was setting a trap for me. And I didn't intend to walk in blindly just because I was annoyed at Jim for discussing my views with her.

"We cannot afford extravagance or needless expense, Ramon he have not millions to throw away. And he have trust me," said Rosa proud. "So I am to pay the Storrs woman her big salary when she is no longer needed. It is absurd. We must get rid of her."

"Perhaps the time will come when she will be very much needed," I suggested, hoping my indignation in flash at this cold-blooded scheme to get rid of Mabel.

"Well, I can't put it over big, or put it over at all without you, Anne," said Betty, in a tone that was just the shade of whining.

"There are a good many reasons," said Rosa. "I know not everything have temporary. I fear from sweet next house. But you are coming back, aren't you?"

Jim smiled. The expression was now indulgent beyond question. Rosa smiled also, her eyes darted in self-gratulation of the words that tripped from her lips. Her fingers stroked and toyed with mine mechanically as she spoke.

"Anne is philosopher. She knows how it is that no one is so much missed that he cannot be replaced. Was not Jaime gone for long and did she not make—how you say—go of it without him? The Mr. Lacy, he was very helpful—not? And you, Patricia, and me and every one—we help. So any business it can run without its head. I help you, Anne to get out of the going back to work, don't it? Me—I'm clever little devil, not?"

Jim roared in appreciation of her chirky impertinence. Pat and Jeanie smiled with a certain amount of toleration.

An hour later, when Virginia had come upstairs with me, supposedly to help me get ready for then return trip, but actually to talk about our Phoebe, Jim strolled into the room to announce that Pat was driving us into town and wanted Jeanie to put on a warmer dress and come along. Virginia liked the idea and ran to make ready. Then Jim turned to me with curt dismissal.

"But what really counts is that she's a fine business woman.

"Of course, if you are willing that a woman like the Storrs shall work side by side with our—impressionable and charming Jaime, who am I to interfere?"

She laughed suggestively. But I determined to ignore Rosa's innuendo, and to interpret her words differently from what she intended.

"Suppose we don't bother Jim about this now," I suggested. "He's just getting back into harness. He'll save enough to consider——"

"He shall not be made to consider this," replied Rosa, with a suavity that had a slightly sinister tinge.

"Fine," I said heartily.

So Long

"No—not Jaime," Rosa murmured as she started toward the door. "So long" she added, standing poised lightly a moment and waving to me mockingly. "I shall not bother Jaime, as you put it, with the report of the character of the women he is having in his office. It is not to Jaime I must go with knowledge that you say won't interest him. Not to Jaime"—

There was a trill of challenging and malicious laughter. Then the door clicked shut after Rosa Cordova.

All the suspicion and jealousy Jim felt for Anthony Norreys in the old days seemed crystalized into his insolent greeting.

"Welcome home, Harrison!" Tony replied courteously. "I'm mighty glad to see you, and just as sorry I couldn't join you folks at dinner."

Not Forgotten

"No, I've not forgotten," I said. Then venturing boldly, I added: "And the more credit to her that from the moment she found out Dick West was a trickster and a crook, she worked on the side of right, and helped us get those papers back."

"Durango is proof of Mabel Storrs's case," laughed Rosa, curtly. "Well, we do not judge, you and I. Who knows—white lilac—if maybe our handsome friend Ralph Lacy needed you—what you would do. Or I for—Jaime"

"Don't." I gasped. Then, refusing to let my emotions give Rosa the advantage, I went on in a tone I tried to keep poised and tolerant.

"Let's not joke over unthinkable situations. You're just holding on to a prejudice nothing can justify. I know Mabel is a fine woman

"Why all this fuss about Phoebe? A trip to Dreamwold isn't so terrific, is it? Think she might forget to coiffle herself and come to welcome her brother."

I ran over and put my arms about Jim, loving him the more for the masculine denseness.

"She always took you in," said Rosa carelessly.

"We're all like the same person," I replied in the tone of a complete pacifist. I thought I might see strenuously refuse to see the gage Rosa was throwing down that she'd pick it up again in chagrin.

"Like—not like'" stormed Rosa. "The Storrs was—too friendly with the dead and gone senor West who caused us all our trouble. You have forgot that it was from her uncle safe he steals the papers which make your husband's oil lands and the Cordova holdings not any good at all. Have you?"

ROYAL ROMANCES

FEMALE ENIGMA OF ANCIENT EGYPT.

By Jessie Lee Weeks

QUEEN AAHMES of the fifteenth century B. C. of Egypt. She was one of the most beautiful of the fascinating women rulers who preceded Cleopatra in that land, and also the mother of Egypt's most famous queen, Hatshepsut. The mystery of why she failed to exercise her rights of rulership and gave them over to her husband has never been solved.

On [illegible] was in love with some commoner whom she dared not acknowledge—keeping her [illegible] Egyptian [illegible] were the most [illegible] woman [illegible] decreed that any woman found guilty should have her nose cut off.

The [illegible] is straightened by a little fairy tale that her daughter published long [illegible] after the death of her father, Thomas I. There is evidence that it was accepted by the people as true. The story was [illegible] was not too real [illegible] that's over, but that a god had appeared to her mother in the form of light and perfume [illegible] which was the result.

Aahmes reigned the full seventeen years of the Egyptian throne. Her own brothers [illegible] and [illegible] but her [illegible] only legitimate heir. She was a strangely beautiful girl, and, of course, she had many suitors, but, for reasons of state, she was obliged to choose a prince of royal blood for her husband. Thutmes was selected, and although Aahmes had unquestioned right of priority over him because Egyptian law permitted a woman to exercise all rights of rulership, [illegible] was [illegible] to him as [illegible] government of her country. The mystery deepens when an examination of record shows that she possessed a brilliant and personal mind.

At [illegible] she gave birth to a [illegible] who was to dominate Egypt completely through a long reign. Because of Hatshepsut's devotion to her, we possess the beautiful portraits of Aahmes, which are carved and painted in the temple at Deir el Bahari. One of these is accompanied by an inscription which reads: "Aahmes is her name; she is more beautiful than any woman."

Now, three thousand years later, the beautiful smile of Aahmes looks out from the crumbling stone and gives a warm human touch to the silent ruins about her.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Wyeth's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after an other application or two it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

France's Low Birth-rate

THE principal cause of the low birth-rate in France, according to sociologists, is the barring of one of several children from becoming the sole heir to an estate. The peasant likes to leave his property intact.

The Early Bookplates

BOOKPLATES were first used in Germany in the sixteenth century. Albert Durer designed some in 1524, Cardinal Wolsey, in 1525, possessed some of the finest English examples of quaint and charming designs.

for three families and the seat of them is down around his ankles some place.

"Well, the night after we dock at New York we loaded ourselves up with the opium, some hidin' it one way and some another, and all of us starts down the gangplank. Just as we get off the dock and start up the street thinkin' we're safe as a church, out hops a bunch of revenue officers from behind a row of trucks and the battle is on.

We never had a chance, Ken. There was treachery in it, ye see. They were layin' for us. When I see what has happened I'm no mad I look around for the handiest thing to fight with, which the same happens to be a loose cobblestone lying in the gutter. I pick it up and slam the nearest revenue man over the head with it. The next minute some one knocks me silly and when I come to I'm in the smooser. The original charge is ,smuggilin', but the next day mine is changed to manslaughter. Ye see Ken, the man I hit never got over it."

"You killed him?"

"Well—he died, anyways, I could never feel I'd killed him, because I never meant to, d'ye see? To knock him out, yes—but not to kill him. Yet, intentions or no, there I was and I paid for that one blow by doing ten years in Atlanta."

"In prison, is that?"

Milk of Misery

"Yes, Ken; ten endless, witherin' years in prison. When I got out I was an old man. Not as old if ye counted by years, but old, old in me feelin's. I had no wish to roam the world any longer. All I wanted was to creep back here among the scenes I used to dream and drink 'em in with me eyes every day as long as the Lord would spare me. I was a boy in these parts, and when we were your age your father and me used to lark around together, though he was not supposed to have anythin' to do with the likes of me. When he went up to school I ran away to sea, and it was a good thirty years before I came back here to stay. I found your father the master of the estate. Your mother was still alive, then, and out of the goodness of their hearts they took me on. I've been happy enough here, but I'm not the man I would have been if I hadn't spent ten years behind the bars. That's what foolin' with opium did for me.

A Thinning Allowance.

"There's a curse on the stuff, Ken; I'm tellin ye true. The juice of the poppy is the milk of misery."

"Is opium made from poppy juice? I didn't know that."

"It is, and them that treads the poppy path has only grief to hope for."

"Then that treads the poppy path—" the boy repeated the phrase softly to himself, his fancy caught by something indefinable in the rhythm of it. Old Phil made no claim to supernatural gifts, but, could he have glanced ahead down the years at just that moment he might have seen a still figure lying face downward inside a scattered bunch of pennies and seeing it he would have known that his words as applied to the career of the youth in front of him, had in them something of prophecy.

Kenneth dutifully finished his preparatory schooling and entered an institution of higher learning in Dublin, but though his companionships there were pleasant and he made creditable progress with his studies, it was not long before he realized that all hope of his doing any globe-trotting was fading rapidly away. He mentioned the circumstances to Ralph Aylsmere, the young Englishman who shared his "diggines" with him.

"The governor's cut my allowance again," he announced, "I suspect things are going rather hard with the old boy. He's not much of a manager and when creditors get too pressing he merely sells part of the estate and carries on. I'm beginning to think he's strulling a point to keep me here. As I've traveled after me pal me degree—well, I fancy that's out of the question, unless I manage it on my own, somehow."

"If it's travel you're looking for, maybe I can help you out," his room-mate replied. "My old man is forever dashing off to the end of the earth on some confidential mission for the government. He might take you along."

"Why don't you go along yourself?"

"No, thanks. I've been with him once or twice. I hate the beastly places they send him to. You can have my share, old dear. I'll speak to him about it, if you like."

Thus it came about that when Kenneth next spent a week-end at Ballymacoily with his father he had something quite specific to say to him. He had no intention, he stated, of remaining idle upon the estate. Sir Charles Aylsmere, Ralph's father, was setting out for China shortly and had offered to take him on as secretary.

There was an acrimonious scene, in which old Gavin upbraided his son for an ungrateful tramp not to come home and lift the burden of responsibility from his aged shoulders, but Kenneth held to his determination. On the day of his graduation he returned home, packed up his few belongings, and set off for London to join Sir Charles. Old Phil drove him to the station in the one remaining dogcart which the estate boasted. As they said good-by his ancient companion placed a hand on his shoulder and looked earnestly into his face.

"Take heed to yourself in China, Ken, me boy," he said. " 'Tis there the poppies grow, and 'tis there the path begins."

CHAPTER III.

"I say, Vinton!"

Claude Sevriss, representing a British insurance company in Shanghai, stood up beside his table in the Astor House bar and awaited the coming of the sharp featured young man whom he had hailed from across the room. "Are you still looking for some one to share your sumptuous quarters with you?" he inquired, as they shook hands.

"I am," was the reply, "and unless I find some one chop-chop I'll be moving to quarters a bally sight less sumptuous, if that's possible."

"Then let me acquaint you with Kenneth Royce of Ballymacoily, fresh from old Ireland over the sea."

It was in this informal fashion that the friendship between Royce and Vinton had its beginning.

The duties imposed by Sir Charles upon his secretary were not arduous and he had a considerable amount of time to himself. Kenneth improved those spare hours by acquiring a smattering of the Chinese language, which, as the months went by he developed into quite a passable knowledge of the spoken tongue, though his knowledge of the written characters remained little more than rudimentary. Vinton spoke the local dialect with a fair degree of fluency and Kenneth soon found that his roommate had quite a fund of information concerning the country and its customs. He was surprisingly familiar with the winding-in labyrinth of Old Shanghai itself and could find his way from any one of its dive dens to any other without hesitation. It tickled his pride to display this familiarity for Kenneth's benefit, and during the early days of their friendship he delighted in playing the role of guide.

"The tempie which you see before you is said to be the one which inspired the design for the famous willow pattern plate," he would announce rhetorically. "It stands upon a small island, you observe, and is approached by narrow bridges over what appears to be a diminutive lake of pea soup. It is not pea soup, however, as your nostrils will presently inform you. It is stagnant water with a beautiful green scum upon its surface. Modern methods of sanitation progress but slowly in Shanghai."

"And that reminds me," Royce had remarked, upon the occasion of the latter discourse, "I want to see an opium joint. I suppose you could find one?"

"Surely—a dozen of them if you like, but I think you'll be disappointed."

It was surprise rather than disappointment that Royce felt when the promised visit was made. The place to which Vinton took him was a sizable building, several stories in height, each story containing one spacious room with two tiers of curtained bunks around its walls and row upon row of low wooden beds ranged across the floor. All the occupants of these beds were Chinese of the poorer class, each intent upon the business of cooking and smoking his little pill, or reclining in placid enjoyment of the smoke recently completed.

An Illusion

"But what a huge place!" Royce remarked, almost incredulously. "Opium 'joint' and opium 'den' always conveyed to my mind a stuffy little rat hole down under ground somewhere, with smoke so thick in it that you could hardly see the light of the lamps."

"They vary in size, the same as hotels do, or restaurants," Vinton explained. "There are places not so far from your mental picture of what an opium den should be and there are others much finer than this one. This happens to be one of the largest in the city—and one of the safest. I can take you to one smaller and more luxurious, if you care to see it."

"Lead on, then," said Royce. "I might as well complete my education right now."

The house to which Vinton next introduced his companion was much more exclusive than the one they had just quitted. It had private rooms, handsomely appointed, in which there was a profusion of costly rugs, rich brocades and silken hangings.

"If you really want to complete your education, you should try a few puffs just to see what it's like," said Vinton, as the elderly Chinaman who admitted them ushered them into a vacant room.

"You won't like it—no one ever relishes his first pill—but it can't do you any harm. Shall I order a layout for you?"

"Thanks fearfully, but I'm not having any this journey," declined Royce. "Frankly, I'm afraid of the stuff."

"Nonsense," scoffed Vinton. "One pill wouldn't give you the habit. You won't have one? Very well, but you'll never have a better chance. You're dead safe here. No one would ever know."

Something in Vinton's manner, a repressed excitement, a nonchalance just the least bit overdone, bred in Royce's mind at that moment a suspicion that had not existed there before.

"No, I'm not having any," he repeated, "but" he added, don't let that stop you, old man, if you want to experiment."

"Oh, it wouldn't be an experiment with me," said Vinton airily. "I've taken a whiff now and again when I felt low. Not as a regular thing, you understand. No one could say I ever had the habit. No, some, not tonight. We're going along, now."

Young Movie Director, in Love With Film Star, Shot to Death After Giving Evidence

THE GO-GETTER

PETER B. KYNE'S GREAT STORY

"The Go-Getter," by Peter B. Kyne, has been created into a superlative photo play by Cosmopolitan Productions, director E. H. Griffith, scenario by John Lynch.

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

"OH, you think it will. Well, I want to tell you, Cappy, that Mary is seeing too much of that young man to suit me."

"Perhaps she's not trying to suit you," smiled Cappy.

"I'm going to help you," said Skinner, "because the sooner he goes to Shanghai the better I'll be pleased."

"I got you," said Cappy," "everybody's happy—Sunday afternoon, then."

Once Mary was outside the Ricks offices she turned to Bill with a puzzled smile.

"I don't know whether I'm doing the right thing to let you bamboozle me this way — you know you never asked me to lunch."

"But I'm tickled to death you're seeing," said Bill, "and I did order the lunch, anyway."

If her father had looked out of the window he would have seen Mary driving the young man out of the yard and his anger would have been further increased.

They made their way to a fashionable restaurant known as the Poulet d'Or. It was an adventure for Mary. Somehow Mr. Peck had a masterful way with him that reminded her of her father; he was not like the other men she knew. She wondered as they entered the restaurant how he would manage to secure a table. But it seemed quite easy for Bill; the head waiter was obsequious, only he gave them a place where the traffic was thickest.

"Why not that table in the alcove" suggested Mr. Peck.

"It is reserved," said the waiter. A sign to that effect stood against a carafe in its centre.

Mr. Peck removed the card to the less desirable table and motioned Mary to a seat; the waiter hemmed and hesitated and finally vanished. Mary was amused; Bill was certainly a go-getter. It didn't matter whether it was a consignment of skunk sprues or a meal. She hadn't gotten so far as to wonder whether he might not apply the same tactics to herself. But she was to find out before the meal was over.

It was close to 1 o'clock when the couple came into the Poulet d'Or; it was long after four when they left; and Mary, who had entered the restaurant with a sincere admiration for Bill Peck, came out wearing a diamond ring on the third finger of her left hand, which in polite circles means much more than admiration.

"I'm rather afraid we ought to wait a few days before we tell father," said Mary, who could visualize the scene between herself and the custodian of the Skinner fortune.

"I'll tell him," said Bill. "I'm proud of it."

"I'll compromise, I'll tell Cappy first," said Mary.

"Good idea," said Bill.

Mary's decision to tell Cappy first of her engagement arose not so much from fear of what her father might say as from a desire to enlist the aid of her old-time friend and thus fortify herself with a power behind the throne.

Mary was shrewd; she knew the elder Skinner too well to dash in with a bald avowal that she was going to marry Bill Peck. There are ways of doing things, and Mary chose the one which would be attended with the least friction.

"It seems to me," her father remarked that evening, "that young Peck is spending a good deal of his time here."

"Is he?" asked his daughter.

LIGHTING HOME

—By Loretto G. Lynch—

COMPARATIVELY few families own a proper reading lamp. The ornate bridge lamps so much used are far from comfortable for reading. After a diligent search I came upon a lamp the other day which seems ideal. It is a floor lamp with a goose-neck which may be bended in most any direction. It was quite without ornamentation, but an artist friend suggested that the metal cup-shaped shade might be covered to simulate the body of a bird and that a long bill and legs of silk might be adjusted. The lamp will concentrate its light upon your book without any attempt to blind you first. Its cost is moderate.

The bright, harsh lights of the cheap apartment parlor are anything but restful, yet shaded electric and gas lamps are obtainable. And even if you do not wish to purchase a lamp for the improvement of your home some of the harshness may be taken away by substituting the amber-colored light bulb used so ably by the motion picture houses to give the impression of restfulness and elegance. Under such a light even cheap, faded carpet looks well.

The lamp that clamps on is especially useful in the home. For instance, for the restless one who must read a while to induce sleep, this lamp may be clamped on the head of the bed or it may be used by the man who shaves in some dark nook, or it may be clamped over the sewing machine or writing table. To make the home more homey light it carefully.

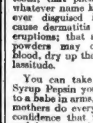
Syrup Pepsin Helps Nature Give Relief

Try it when a Laxative is needed and see the wonderful results

IT is not necessary to take a violent physic for so simple an ailment as constipation. Yet many thoughtless parents give mercury in the form of calomel, and coal-tar in the form of phenol when a natural vegetable compound like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do the work equally well and without danger. People should realize that mercury may salivate and in certain conditions loosen the teeth; that phenolphthalein, by whatever name known and however disguised in candy, may cause dermatitis and other skin eruptions; that salt waters and powders may concentrate the blood, dry up the skin and cause lassitude.



You can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself or give it to a babe in arms, as thousands of mothers do every day, with the confidence that it is the safest and best medicine you can use for constipation and such complaints. A teaspoonful will relieve you over night even if the constipation has been chronic for years. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and does not cramp or gripe. Every druggist handles it, and bottles are so generous that the cost amounts to only about a cent a dose. You buy it with the understanding that if it does not do as claimed your money will be refunded. The names of all the ingredients are on the package.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Mrs. A. Arceneaux of Orange, Texas, suffered from constipation for six years and found no relief until she took Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; and Mrs. Gus Anderson of Bull, Kans., corrected her bowel trouble so that she now eats and sleeps normally. Bring a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin into your own home and let the family use it for constipation, biliousness, wind, gas, headaches, flatulency, and to break up fevers and colds.

The Advancement of Science Keeps Up

New Help Found for the Weak and Debilitated

SCIENTIFIC progress has become so rapid that it is almost impossible for the average person to keep up with the wonderful discoveries that are leading to complete mastery of disease. We have come to feel that there is really no limit to what the tireless workers in the field of medical research can achieve.

The cause of the extreme weakness of body and mind and the nervous exhaustion that is so often seen in men and women, and for which they have not been able to account, has been found. And, what is much more important to the thousands thus afflicted, a way has been discovered to relieve these symptoms and promptly restore vigor to the body.

It has been found that the loss of weight, strength and energy that brings distress and depression of mind to countless men and women, is due solely to the fact that the inorganic elements present in the food they eat are not properly utilized by the millions of little cells of which our tissues are composed. When these cells fail to receive the proper amount of these inorganic elements—when they are faced by a famine—they lessen their functional activity in order to escape death through starvation. In other words, these cells curtail their production of vital energy and, as a consequence, the entire body is weakened, just as it is after a day of extremely hard labor if we do not take time for a mid-day lunch and rest.

In Wincarnis—the reconstructive tonic—are combined the inorganic elements present in the food we eat, and which the cells of the body require in order to produce strength and energy and rebuild tissue. When taken three or four times a day, Wincarnis furnishes the cells with an abundance of the necessary inorganic elements, and the body promptly regains its lost vigor, weight is restored, and there is a full recovery of energy. For almost half-a-century, physicians have prescribed Wincarnis for the weak, anemic, nervous and run-down.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Any business man who does not read the newspapers is in danger of falling down on his job.

It is impossible to keep properly and promptly posted on what is going on in the world without reading the daily paper.

• • •

The general manager of a large manufacturing company located in rather a small town, once complained to me that he felt more or less out of touch with the heartbeats of the business world, as he was so far from any great financial centre. He complained, too, that the local newspapers paid too scant attention to business news. He asked me what he could do about it.

• • •

I advised him, first of all to get into touch with the local newspaper owners and, if possible, have a talk with them on the subject, and it was just possible that he might be able to persuade one or the two of them that it would pay to devote more space to the kind of business news and views which would interest him and many other citizens whose activities made it advisable for them to keep in day-to-day touch with the events and trends of the world of affairs.

• • •

In addition to reading very closely his local newspaper, I also heartiingly recommended that he become a regular subscriber and reader of at least one of the great city papers.

• • •

He replied that he was anxious to get at once business news, but an intelligent interpretation of what the news signified, and that he wanted to read expert comments on financial and economic and labor trends and tendencies.

• • •

I assured him that the livest newspapers in America now spend money very generously, both for gathering business and financial news and for the writings of commentators enjoying the highest reputations.

• • •

He did as I suggested and, as a matter of fact, I understand that one of the local newspapers increased its service of business news features.

Moreover, he immediately began getting and reading regularly a metropolitan newspaper featuring business and finance.

• • •

There may not, of course, have been any connection between this and what followed, but the fact is that the enterprise of which this man is formerly partner has since done better than it ever did before.

• • •

Some business men, especially those of the old school, think it is enough if they read the leading weekly or monthly devoted to their line of business.

This, we have seen enough to supplement this by reading some periodical embracing the whole of the general business and financial field.

• • •

This, however, is not enough. No man holding any kind of responsible job can afford to neglect reading the newspapers even for one day. Something may have been chronicled which it was extremely important for him to know and ignorance of which might lead him into making himself ridiculous later.

• • •

I could go further. I would make this statement:

No man is thoroughly educated who does not regularly and systematically read the financial papers. He is by no means fitted himself to the maximum for filling any important business position.

• • •

To fill his job as efficiently as you know how, he need not be absorbed in quite a few hours of your own time every week to reading well-selected newspapers.

Oils, Steels and Specialties Are Leaders in Stronger New York Market

TRADING QUIET BUT FIRM IN RAILROADS

Oils, steels and specialties were leaders in a stronger New York stock market today, with money renewing at 6 per cent. Trading was quiet with prices firm in the rail group. Sugars were strong.

New 1923 highs were set by Colorado Fuel & Iron, Fleischmann and Gimbel Bros.

Short covering continued at the outset of today's dealings, prices of the usual leaders opening at slightly higher levels.

Activity was greatest in the domestic oil shares and there was a continuance of the recent buying of the food issues.

Corn Products started one point higher, but Phillips Petroleum was only up ¾ despite the declaration of a 50 cent stock dividend and an extra cash dividend of one per cent.

When the initial rise failed to bring out any of the stocks which were bought for supporting purposes in yesterday's market, traders became more confident as to the immediate course of prices and purchased quite liberally in all quarters of the list.

Outstanding strong features included motors, food, merchandise and independent steel shares. Colorado Fuel gained two points. Gimbel Brothers, and Pullman, New York Dock, White Motor and Punta Alegre Sugar 1 each.

The customary profit-taking when the good news was out occurred in Phillips Petroleum, that stock falling back 1¾ points from its initial price.

The feature of the early dealing in foreign exchange was a sharp rise in French francs, which moved up 8 points to 6.73 cents. Demand sterling was up fractionally, being quoted at $4.64¾.

UNION PACIFIC.

To S. T. T., South Braintree.—Ten days ago I stated that a change in Union Pacific's dividend rate was extremely unlikely. From Judge Lovett, Union Pacific chairman, I have the statement that report the board is considering a change in dividend policy is too absurd to discuss. Canadian and Union pay $10 a year each, and the dividend spread which has prevailed, there has been a good deal of shifting by American investors from Canadian to Union. London buying has kept Canadian up.

"Crop outlook is excellent," says Chairman Lovett, "except in small, scattered spots where 'there has been a scarcity of rain for wheat. Lumber business is more active and prices are good. Construction of all kinds has stimulated the lumber as well as other building material markets. People in West seem to have adjusted themselves to the new scale of prices, and have resumed buying.

"The only example of over-expansion seems to be in the fruit business, exclusive of citrus fruits. Some sections have grown too rapidly, and their products are moving slowly. There were 57,000 carloads of grapes moved last year, against 70,000 in 1912. The citrus fruit industry, although growing constantly, shows steadier expansion.

"Union Pacific is growing with the territory it serves. Its gross during the year was somewhat retarded by shopmen's strike and labor shortage. This year improvement expenditures will be larger than usual. Of the $40,000,000, approximately $25,000,000 will be spent for additions and betterments, including completion of double-tracking of main line between Omaha and Ogden; $9,500,000 for new equipment, exclusive of half interest in 3,500 new refrigerator cars for Pacific Fruit Express Co.; and $3,500,000 for branches and other new lines. The 3,500 refrigerator cars will cost about $15,000,000, of which Union and Southern Pacific will each pay half.

"There remains about 54 miles to be double tracked, 24 miles between Granger and Lerren and 31 between Emory and Echo, on the main line. In addition some double-tracking and 1 grade reducing will be done in Idaho on Oregon Short Line. This, as well as main line work should be completed by 1923."

UTAH CONSOLIDATED.

To W. I. N., Geneva avenue—Report of Utah Consolidated Mining Co. for 1922 shows net loss of $339,641, compared with a loss of $338,813 in 15 mays in part.

"There were mined 109,320 tons of copper ore which yielded 3,410,518 pounds of copper, 26,813 ounces of silver and 2,857 ounces of gold.

"The suit brought by Utah Apex Company against the company was decided adversely to Utah Consolidated by United States Circuit Court of Appeals on March 26 last, and on February 26, 1923, the Supreme Court refused to review the case. A judgment of nearly $1,000,000 against the company, which will be paid. To secure this amount a loan was obtained from International Smelting Company, and a mortgage placed on company's properties."

Current assets at close of December 31, 1922, amounted to $1,169,178, current liabilities, $1,101,836, working capital, $67,687.

The company is carrying in its investments 8,556 shares of Anaconda Copper stock at $215,151.

People Can Fix the Price of Sugar

Consumers Need Not Be at Mercy of Gamblers in This Great Necessity.

(Copyright, 1923, by Star Company.)

Mr. Earl D. Babst, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, has some very kind things to say about the part which the Hearst papers played in stopping the sugar panic which threatened to develop in February, after speculators on the New York Sugar Exchange had boosted the price of sugar three cents a pound.

This is what Mr. Babst says: "If the Hearst papers had not taken the course they did take in allaying the February hysteria of the housewives of the country with regard to an impending sugar shortage, the situation would be far worse than it is. You people have done a real service."

The people of the country can do themselves a greater service than the Hearst papers did in urging them not to let speculators stampede them into paying panic prices.

The people can do more than simply stop a rise in the price of sugar. They can drive the price back where it should be.

Recall what happened: On February 9, Mr. Hoover's Department of Commerce issued a report prophesying that there would be a sugar shortage. Immediately the great financial interests, which had gotten options on the Cuban sugar crop, began to force up the price of sugar "futures" on that gambling institution known as the New York Sugar Exchange.

Most of the three cent price advance since February 9 was effected in the so-called "Hoover days," when the speculators took advantage of the false government report. Hoover later "corrected" the story which his department had circulated, but the damage was done.

Now mark what this sugar robbery means to each one of us individually. The average consumption of sugar in the United States is one hundred pounds for every man, woman and child. The advance of three cents per pound means that in twelve months the sugar gentlemen who did this trick on the New York Sugar Exchange will take $3 away from each of us, they will take $300,000,000 from the one hundred million of us.

Do not imagine that they would be satisfied with this $300,000,000. Sugar has risen from seven cents to ten cents per pound retail. The bulletins of the sugar brokers are confidently prophesying that we shall soon be paying fifteen cents per pound. That will mean an additional $500,000,000 for the sugar gamblers, before the year is over.

It is up to the plain people of the United States to say whether they will submit to this robbery. It is to you that they sell the sugar. The small driblets purchased by each individual family go to make up the mighty stream from which the profiteers hope to make their haulage.

A small restriction in purchase by each one of us will produce a tremendous cumulative effect upon the gamblers. If you and I buy less sugar the retailer buys less from the wholesaler, the wholesaler less from the refiner, the refiner less from the speculators which have seized upon the Cuban crop. Down will go all sugar prices.

The speculators, who in February bought 1,500,000 tons of options on the Cuban sugar crop, are shaking for fear that the government's injunction will close the gambling sugar exchange and thus remove the market for their options. Sugar is ready to tumble. The people, restricting their purchases, will "shake down" the price.

Go light on buying sugar. It is your patriotic duty. It is your personal advantage, for sugar is going down.

During the war we all skimped and saved on sugar, so that the Allies might have plenty. Let us save now, not to aid the Allies, but ourselves. Let us teach sugar gamblers a lesson they never will forget. Let us drive back the price to seven cents, where it belongs. Let us reach out and take back the $300,000,000 of our money that they think they have put into their pockets.

Better Wages, Better Times

Especially If a Good Day's Work Is Given for a Good Day's Pay

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Wages are raised in many directions, 200,000 meat packers get an average raise of 11 per cent. Thousands of cotton workers about the same. New York plasterers are raised 20 per cent., from $10 to $12 a day.

Those increases are good for business generally. All the money the country can get is what the workers have to spend.

Some tell you that $12 a day for plasterers means prohibitive building cost. Not necessarily, and not if the men really give a day's work for good pay and develop enough apprentices to supply the demand.

The trouble is not in high pay, but lack of workmen, and the criminal idea that to work badly and cut down production means to help other workers. The shirking workman cheats himself and his class most, in the long run.

The Bonus Is Coming

A Little, Small and Rather Late Recognition

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Soldiers of the late war will be interested to know that the Bonus bill will be introduced as soon as Congress opens. They will be interested also in the fact that this time THE BONUS BILL WILL PASS. Despite the regret and opposition of big taxpayers, the soldiers will be paid a few dollars, a fraction of what they ought to have after being sent abroad to fight for a dollar a day while big men were piling up their millions.

Suppose all the money-making chances of those big fellows had been taken away from them while the war lasted, don't you think THEY would be howling for government compensation?

Cambridge Enforces Law

Mayor Quinn, who, by the way, has made an excellent Mayor of Cambridge, publicly declares that the enforcement of the law is to be the slogan of the Cambridge police. He says that this has been the slogan of the Cambridge police for some time. We have not heard that Cambridge has tolerated stills. We do not get the same reports from Cambridge which we get from Chelsea, for example.

STILL FALL FOR WATER GAME

COLON, April 24.—They're still playing the old "water-champagne" game in the higher class cabarets in Colon. And, true to tradition, the itinerant is as gullible as ever.

Now in these cabarets, where tan and white meet jovially, girls are employed to "eat, drink and be merry" with the guests.

Invariably these girls order the choicest and most expensive liquors and champagnes. But here is the "trick"—the supposed champagne, for which the guest pays a fabulous sum even in this alcoholic oasis, is nothing but colored water. In this way the girls are enabled to move from table to table, drinking voluminously, without possibility of intoxication.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications

Radio "Hold-Up"

Editor Boston American:

Whenever anything in this country becomes popular an ingrowing commercialism seems to fasten upon it with the crippling influence of a dangerous cancer. It now menaces the radio telephone. The association which holds or controls the copyright on much of the popular music of today has demanded that the radio telephone broadcasting stations pay a fee for the privilege of broadcasting such music. Already more than thirty such radio telephone stations have refused to pay this fee, which means that listeners to these stations will be denied the pleasure of most of the popular airs and songs.

The radio stations, including the one at Medford Hillside, consider this fee a downright "hold-up." The stations do not broadcast to a paid audience and seldom pay the artists who furnish their talent. Many of the stations believe that if anyone is to be paid a fee it should be paid by the associations holding the copyrights to the radio station for the tremendous advertising value of the broadcast.

Radio telephone men have found upon investigation that the broadcasting of almost any piece of music has greatly increased the sale of that music in the music stores. The policy of demanding that the stations pay a fee in addition to the free advertising they give seems narrow and short-sighted to say the least.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls. No Names Are Published.

Offers Shoes

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the address of M. B., who asks for a pair of shoes, size 2, and I will send her a new pair. I have another pair the same size if you will send the address of another little girl. I have a few other things, a one-piece velour dress, skirts, overblouse, etc., which will fit a size 3½ girl. I can appreciate the good work you are doing, as I was left a widow with three children, but that was twenty years ago, and times are different. J. B. C.

ED. NOTE—Nothing like a little personal experience with the hard knocks to soften the sensibilities. You will be put in touch with M. B., and with Mrs. E. M. P., who can wear the other clothes. The extra pair of shoes will be held for a few days. Thank you.

Puppy for Company

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a little girl twelve years old and have been sick in bed for the last six months. I get so lonesome lying down with no one to talk to, so if you know of anyone who has a puppy and wants to find a good home for it, will you please give them my address?

H. K.

Family of Eight

Editor Helping Hand:

I am fourteen years old and am one in a family of eight. My father died one year ago, and my mother finds it very hard to get along, as just my sister and brother are working and don't get much pay. Do you think any of your fine readers have clothes of any kind for me? And oh, how I wish I had a decent pair of shoes. I wear size 3½C or D. My little brother, age six, has just one suit that he wears all the time, and I do wish that you could find something for him. All the other little boys on the street make fun of him, and this makes my mother feel bad.

MAE.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with E. M. B., who will be very grateful for them.

Slippers and Shoes

Editor Helping Hand:

If you know of any family that is in need of slippers and shoes, size 2½ and 3, for girls around eighteen, will be glad to send them.

MRS. A. W. H.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. You will be put in touch with E. M. B., who will be very grateful for them.

Would Aid Mothers

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you give me the names of two mothers who are in need of underflannels for an infant up to about six months. I also have a few toys which might interest a child about two years old, and a few articles of clothing such as hats, skirts and dress, size 34, that would do for a schoolgirl or young mother. Would prefer parties living in Somerville, as I will deliver by auto.

MRS. V. M.

ED. NOTE—We have (elegantly speaking) many babies to clothe, with the help of you kind readers. You will be put in touch with Mrs. C. L. of Somerville, whose husband has been sick and unable to provide clothes for an expected newcomer; with Mrs. M. G. N. of Malden, who has a large family which includes a six-months-old baby and with a Cambridge girl of seventeen in need of clothes.

Needs Dress Form

Editor Helping Hand:

If Mrs. L. H. N. would give me the dress form I would be very grateful. I have some pieces from doll's clothing to give to some child. Also clothing for a boy three. This includes some undergarments and a couple of wash suits.

R. S.

ED. NOTE—Mrs. L. H. N.'s dress form has been promised to someone else. You will be put in touch with Mrs. W. J. M., who has a boy three and is in need of clothes. Thank you.

Needs Watch

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a working man, limited to what I earn from week to week to meet living expenses and pay a debt to undertaker, etc. I had my silver watch, an old Waltham, stolen from my room. I don't feel that I can afford to buy another, and, as I work by the hour, it is most inconvenient not to be able to tell the time. If any one has a cheap silver or dollar watch which will keep time and which they have no further use for, it would be a blessing to me.

H.

Dresses Outgrown

Editor Helping Hand:

I have two dresses that I have outgrown, that will fit a girl about seven or eight, and a white corduroy coat that will fit a baby 2½ to three years old.

E. L.

ED. NOTE—You will be put in touch with Mrs. J. T. M., who is much in need of such clothes. Thank you.

Baseball Outfit

Editor Helping Hand:

Has any of your kind readers any baseball articles, such as bats, balls and gloves, they have no use for? I am a newsboy, and I cannot afford to buy any.

J. O'B.

Clothes for Boys

Editor Helping Hand:

Would you please send me the address of some mother or mothers who would like those things? I have a few things to fit a two-year-old boy, also a boy of three and a few things to fit a boy of four. Also some things for a woman size 36. Including a white skirt, brown jersey skirt, waists, underwear and stockings. I will prepay all costs. Wish I was rich.

MRS. F. M. K.

YESTERDAY'S GIANTS DEALT WITH PYGMY PROBLEMS

By Herbert Kaufman

MANY men of many minds. A Canadian professor believes that insanity is sweeping the earth. There's a lot of irresolution and indecision, but matters haven't quite reached that sad pass.

Public opinion, without coherent leadership, is in a daze. Nobody seems certain just what to do about anything.

Problems, for the time, are bigger than men. But then it isn't extraordinary that a universe disordered by events since 1914 should still be full of cracks and leaks. On the contrary, one marvels that suspicion, racial hates, desperation and jealousy haven't made much wider breaches.

Present emergencies are poorly served by precedent. Statecraft and economics are overfed with complications. Years must pass before they're digested.

Current intelligence is not inferior. Other periods hadn't better minds than ours. Yesterday dealt on a lesser scale in smaller areas and without parallel complexities. Former clocks and treasuries weren't pressed by such crises as 1923 encounters.

The business of government and the government of business nowadays are ungrateful, headachy jobs.

Waterloo Is Still Located in Europe

Lord Robert Cecil, zealous advocate of the League of Nations from cellar to cupola, confers with Mr. Harding, who doesn't care to enter internationalism further than a side-porch world court, and with Senator Borah, convinced that democracy isn't safe in any part of the structure.

One group of Republicans assures the President that the administration's return path to power runs overseas. The chairman of the party's congressional committee as vehemently insists that Waterloo is still located in Europe.

Diagnosticians predict a sick G. O. P. in 1924, unless it undergoes prompt treatment for a very alarming diabetic condition. They suggest that Drs. Fordner and McCumber miscalculated the sugar content of their prescription for prosperity.

Congressmen, watching the weathervane, begin to plan curbs upon profiteering. You'll find how much these gestures alarm market manipulators by referring to Saturday quotations.

Sugar jumped—not with fright—but to a new high for the year. Voters are more apt to be of one mind if it stays up.

British Lords and American Felons

London definitely rejects Washington's proposition to co-operate against bootlegging. The three-mile limit meets the Eighteenth Amendment and won't budge. Cabinet plans to halt rum-runners with naval vessels must be concentrated on shore-returning craft. After all, it makes no difference at which end illicit supplies are cut off, so why bother Downing Street? Prohibition will remember that other countries are not subscribers to the Constitution of the United States.

Britain subsidizes brewers and puts active distillers in the House of Lords. We put 'em in jail. More divergent viewpoints.

Encouraged by Curzon's attitude, Berlin prepares to bid twenty billion gold marks for repossession of the Ruhr and indicates willingness to go higher if the allies will consign occupation forces to the auction block.

France and Belgium reiterate determination to stand by the Versailles Treaty—and their guns—until Cuno makes an acceptable proposition.

A Sad Word for Once Great Men

Colonel Jovan Plamenetz, asserting that his country is an independent kingdom and not part of Jugo-Slavia, tenders a self-signed passport as Premier of Montenegro. We are informed that Mazzini did the same thing when he went to England.

Immigration officials, taking counsel with the map instead of precedent, conduct the great man of the Balkans to Ellis Island. "The saddest words of tongue or pen" are ex and no.

A set of Goethe and a first edition of Faust are sold at Berlin for 20,300,000 marks. Fresh interest in his writings have been manifest in Germany since general quotation of a letter written in 1915, which describes conditions in the Ruhr after Napoleon's withdrawal.

"For twenty years," it states, "they have tortured and destroyed, indeed totally mutilated and ruined this district." The feud along the Rhine is an ancient grudge.

Herr Hohenzollern gives a dinner to Dutch workmen on the completion of alterations in his Warren at Doorn, and presents each guest with an autographed likeness.

Collectors a century hence will not bid millions of marks for that signature. Memory does not enshrine cravens.

A Trolley Car Performs a Miracle

A trolley car hits Mrs. Barbara Donis, a deaf and dumb woman of North Bergen, New Jersey, and brings her to her senses. Rhode Island invites the same motorman to smash into its filibustering Legislature and Lausanne wishes to know if he cares to take a little trip abroad.

Politics and diplomacy need similar shakeups. Million dollar minutes tick in vain for officeholders.

Ellwood Hendrick, lecturing before Northwestern University students, claims that lies and fear give out distinct aromas.

Animals told us that ages ago. Horses and dogs instantly detect timidity and deceit. Reason is not a substitute for instinct. Civilization has also lost aboriginal acuteness.
